

Breakthrough Seen In Nuclear Arms Talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A breakthrough is reported in the nuclear arms talks between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, and a compromise formula has been referred to Moscow.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators indicated they should know today or Saturday whether the two superpowers are going to be able to agree on their second treaty — SALT II — to limit or reduce their arsenals of long-range nuclear weapons.

Informed sources said the compromise formula, reached in a five-hour meeting Thursday and subject to approval by President Carter and the Kremlin, was a blend of a Russian proposal and the U.S. package rejected by Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev last March.

The sources gave this outline of the compromise:

1. Each government would make a modest reduction in its nuclear arsenal and would agree to hold another round of talks on further weapons cuts.

2. Development of the U.S. cruise missile would be limited, and restrictions would be put on where the Soviets could base their Backfire bomber.

The Backfire and the cruise have been the chief obstacles to agreement in negotiations for the past two years to incorporate the 1974 Vladivostok agreement by President Ford and Brezhnev into a treaty. It provided for each nation to be limited to 2,400 long-range bombers and intercontinental missiles. But the two governments could not agree whether the new Soviet bomber and the new American missile should be included in these ceilings.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim told reporters "deep differences" remained between the U.S. and Soviet positions and predicted it would take "quite a long time" before they reached an agreement to replace SALT I, which expires in October. But his assessment was based on a breakfast meeting with Vance before the long negotiating session Thursday.

Vance and Gromyko on Thursday also discussed the Middle East, but it was apparent that their hopes of reconvening an Arab-Israeli peace conference this year were dimmed by the victory of the hardline Likud bloc in Tuesday's Israeli election.

Gromyko told reporters the situation there "is not normal" and is "potentially dangerous," but Vance said the region "has continued dangerous for a long while" before the Likud victory.

General Singlaub Incurs Carter Ire; Gets Trip Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — On orders from a displeased President Carter, the third-ranking U.S. Army general in Korea is flying here for a face-to-face White House confrontation triggered by his public criticism of Carter's plan to withdraw American ground forces from South Korea.

At issue is Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub's public statement that adherence to Carter's plan for withdrawing U.S. ground forces from South Korea over a period of four to five years "will lead to war."

Singlaub was to arrive in Washington today, but White House officials said Thursday they did not know if Carter would see the general Saturday or make him cool his heels until Monday.

The 55-year-old Singlaub, chief of staff of the United Nations Command in Korea, was believed to be the first high-ranking officer called home from overseas by a President since Harry S. Truman recalled Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Korea, during the war there, in 1951.

Although Carter spokesman Rex Granum declined Thursday to say what the President has in mind for Singlaub, another White House official said, when asked if the President was displeased:

"He wasn't happy. Here you have a general making a policy statement when he (Carter) is the commander in chief."

Strip Mine Bill Nearing Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — After six years of fierce legislative battles and two presidential vetoes, Congress is ready to pass tough strip mining controls that are almost certain to become law.

The Senate strip mine control bill due for a final vote today closely resembles one already passed by the House. Backers of the Senate bill, thus far able to turn back weakening amendments, are predicting easy passage.

Although differences in the Senate and House versions would have to be ironed out, the proposal's backers are hopeful the final draft will soon be on President Carter's desk.

Carter has promised to sign the legislation.

Environmentalists claim the Senate bill is more lenient than the House version in several respects.

The Senate version would give most Appalachian strip mining companies a 30-month exemption from restoring surface areas once the coal is mined. The House bill has a nine-month exemption.

And the Senate bill would allow more

Another Carter aide suggested you could guess the President's reaction "toward one who said something like that" by keeping in mind the fact that Carter once was a professional Navy officer.

The quick White House reaction was dramatized by the speed of his recall. A Pentagon spokesman said Singlaub received, through the chain of command, his order from Carter by 10 a.m., Washington time, Thursday — the same day the general's comments were published.

The general boarded a commercial airliner in Seoul on Thursday night for the long flight home.

The Pentagon said it was not known if Singlaub would return to his Korean assignment.

Singlaub reportedly said of Carter's withdrawal plan, which was among the President's oft-repeated campaign pledges:

"If we withdraw our ground forces on the schedule suggested it will lead to war."

Singlaub's statement was reported just five days before two special Carter representatives were due in Seoul to begin talks aimed at implementing the withdrawal. They are Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Philip C. Habib, under secretary of state for political affairs.

However, sponsors of the measure in both houses say they feel compromises on these issues can be reached.

Past congressional efforts toward national environmental and reclamation standards were vetoed by former president Gerald R. Ford in 1974 and 1975.

Strip mining now accounts for 60 per cent of the nation's coal production. This percentage is likely to rise even more if the administration's goal of increasing coal production by two-thirds — to more than a billion tons a year by 1985 — is realized.

The proposed controls set tough standards aimed at preventing further environmental damage from surface mining, with special provisions to protect the hilly coalfields of the East and arid, coal-rich areas of the West.

And the legislation would impose a tax of up to 35 cents a ton on coal for cleaning up strip mine abuses of the past.

And Ford, here Thursday for a Republican fund-raiser, said: "As far as any questions about Mr. Nixon are concerned, his words speak for themselves."

Throughout the 90-minute program, third in a five-part paid-for television series with David Frost, Nixon defended his actions in the Vietnam war and said that without division at home "the war would have been ended one to two years earlier."

He called Pentagon Papers leaker Daniel Ellsberg a "punk"; referred to the "pipsqueak Watergate thing"; labeled Democratic hawks-turned-doves as hypocrites, and said he cracked down on dissidents to speed the end of the war.

He admitted to having paranoia about his critics, "but paranoia for peace isn't that bad."

And he said bitterly that he and his wife "were never invited to the White House, to a dinner or to a lunch" by the Kennedys or the Johnsons in the eight years of their administrations.

During their discussion of that dissent, Frost brought up Nixon's

These facilities are described as a part of National Handicapped Awareness Week, which centers on both physical and mental disorders.

The children and adults enrolled in these areas are afflicted with mental handicaps.

The school presently houses 42 students, including seven in the developmental preschool, 35 clients in the home training area and 34 individuals in the sheltered workshop.

The program for the retarded is continuously searching the county for people who could benefit from the activities offered.

According to a needs assessment pamphlet put out by the school and administrator Jay Clevenger, the "survey and search are done through the cooperation of the local medical society, welfare department including children's services," state department agencies particularly the Division of Mental retardation and the Crippled Children's Services, parents and the staff of the local program.

The infant stimulation program offered at the school is for children from birth to three years who are physically handicapped or developmentally delayed, such as in creeping, sitting, walking or talking.

Early and consistent training is important for these children to prevent additional developmental problems. It is noted in this group, that the child does not have to be mentally retarded to attend these classes.

The program teaches motor and communication self help and educational play skills. It also assists the family to understand and cope with a slow-learning child.

Frost suggested Nixon was saying in certain situations "the president can decide that it's in the best interests of the nation ... to do something illegal."

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market was mixed today as it absorbed the news of another sizeable increase in the consumer price index last month.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell more than 2 points in early trading. But gainers took a small lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the opening the Labor Department reported that the consumer price index rose a seasonally adjusted 0.8 per cent in April, the equivalent of a 9.6 per cent annual rate.

Analysts noted that the market also had to contend with indications Thursday that the Federal Reserve had decided to tighten credit a bit further.

Today's prices included International Flavors & Fragrances, off 1/4 at 19 3/4; Pittsburg, down 3/4 at 29, and American Express, which joined the NYSE list this week, unchanged at 38 1/4.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped back 5.43 to 936.48, after an advance of 16.37 points in the past four sessions.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totalled 21.28 million shares, down from 27.80 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index was down .18 at 54.59.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index eased .02 to 114.92.

Saccharin Hearing Generates Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government will look at keeping saccharin-sweetened diet soft drinks on the market for diabetics, but admits the chances are slim.

"Lots of folks would like to find a way to do that," FDA commissioner Donald Kennedy says, but "the difficulty is how to make it available to those people without spreading the risk (of cancer) throughout the country."

Kennedy clearly was impressed by the parade of diabetics, parents of diabetics and doctors who told two days of hearings that ended Thursday of the plight of diabetics under the FDA's saccharin ban, which will take effect in July.

"We're going to look at it," the commissioner said as he left the hearings on the ban of saccharin from foods, beverages, drugs and cosmetics but permit its sale as a single-ingredient, over-the-counter drug.

"The drug and toothpaste issues are fairly easy to deal with," said one FDA official. "But how do you say you'll permit a dangerous food additive on the market for diabetics but not let other people have it? It just wouldn't stand up."

Diabetics must severely restrict their intake of sugar and carbohydrates to avoid a condition known as ketoacidosis, which can lead to such complications as kidney disease, heart failure, stroke, blindness and gangrene.

The toothpaste industry and dentists joined the fight against the ban, saying that the tiny amounts of saccharin ingested as people brush their teeth are insignificant. Banning the sugar substitute would increase tooth decay because people wouldn't brush if their toothpaste didn't taste good, the witnesses said.

Some 600 prescription drugs also contain saccharin to make them more palatable, and the drug industry wants its products to be exempt from the ban.

The FDA can make exceptions for drugs and cosmetics if it decides the benefits outweigh the risks. But no such legal option exists for food additives, where products must be safe and free of cancer-causing ingredients to be marketed.

The FDA based its ban on a study by Canadian scientists that showed high doses of saccharin caused cancer in laboratory rats.

1976 Property Tax Rollback Reimbursements Announced

State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson reported today a total of $6,916,378.50 in the first half 1976 property tax rollback and homestead exemption and administration costs reimbursements have been sent to six counties.

Of that total, $5,468,313.40 is in 10 per cent property tax rollback reimbursements, Ferguson noted.

Ferguson said $1,419,671.67 of the total reimbursement is for homestead exemptions for elderly homeowners, and $28,393.43 is to reimburse counties for administration costs of the program.

To date, 50 counties have received a total of $32,042,625.45 in property tax rollback reimbursements and $8,377,154.49 in homestead exemption and administration reimbursements for the first half 1976 tax bills.

The other 38 counties will be reimbursed by the state after they certify their tax settlements and property tax rollbacks to the Auditor's office, Ferguson said.

Reimbursements are funded entirely by the state's personal income tax. The counties and the amounts they received for local tax revenue lost through the granting of 10 per cent property tax rollbacks to homeowners were: Fairfield, $507,168.16; Huron, $351,115.43; Lake, $2,059,891.35; Mahoning, $2,240,982.81; Pickaway, $274,835.97; and Vinton, $34,319.68.

Homestead exemption reimbursement payments to the counties (with administrative cost payments in parentheses) were: Fairfield, $145,542.86 ($2,910.86); Huron, $109,029.73 ($2,180.59); Lake, $388,096.81 ($7,761.94); Mahoning, $708,559.07 ($14,171.18); Pickaway, $49,738.07 ($994.76); and Vinton, $18,705.13 ($374.10).

Each county received 2 per cent of the total dollar amount of homestead exemptions granted within the county for administering the homestead exemption program.

Each year's property tax collections and rollback grants are based upon tax settlements of the previous year. There are two settlements per year, February and August - each covering a six month period.

Semi-Annual homestead exemption reimbursements, as provided for by state law in 1972, are also based upon the previous year's tax settlements, Ferguson said.

Due to a state law passed in July of 1974, senior citizens need only file once with their county auditors, unless their homestead status changes.

Prior to that time, it had been necessary to file annually.

Homestead exemptions are restricted to homeowners 65 years of age or older with incomes under $10,000.

The exemptions amount to 70 per cent of taxable property value for those who earned under $2,000 the previous year, 60 per cent for those with incomes up to $4,000, 50 per cent for incomes up to $6,000, and 40 per cent for those with incomes up to $10,000.

program is also not necessarily for only mentally retarded children. It is for children ages three to six with mental or physical handicaps.

The "prepared environment" gears the classroom to the child's size and needs by reducing the size of furniture and materials, as directed in the Montessori Educational Principles. The children are taught by naming, recognition, identification, experimentation and practical life activities.

The community classes are students ages 6 to 21, with classes limited to 12 students. Personal needs, academics, complex social skills and vocational skills are based upon a hierarchy of needs.

They are trained in reading, writing, number skills, visual and auditory training, self help skills, social and perceptual skills.

The home based specialist program is designed for people who are unable to attend the other divisions of the program. A specialist visits homes of these individuals to assist the family in working and playing effectively with those children and adults.

A training program is developed according to each individual's needs including all the educational and physical needs offered at the school.

All these services are provided free to residents of Pickaway County. Funding is provided through the County Mental Retardation Program, and several federal titles.

It was noted in the pamphlet that the areas in need far outnumber the number of persons receiving the correct programming. Four of the areas are not touched within the county due to lack of funds. These areas are independent living skills, living arrangements, interpersonal socialization and infant maldevelopment. These figures were reached by testing each of the enrolled in the county's programs in terms of their immediate needs.

Top on the priority want list of the program is space for the sheltered workshop. Currently the clients work at a building owned by the Fair Board at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds.

It is necessary to vacate the premises two weeks before fair time which involves moving all supplies and materials. Also, working conditions are limited. The 2,700 square feet of work space is inadequate for the types of jobs performed at the workshop.

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market was mixed today as it absorbed the news of another sizeable increase in the consumer price index last month.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell more than 2 points in early trading. But gainers took a small lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the opening the Labor Department reported that the consumer price index rose a seasonally adjusted 0.8 per cent in April, the equivalent of a 9.6 per cent annual rate.

Analysts noted that the market also had to contend with indications Thursday that the Federal Reserve had decided to tighten credit a bit further.

Today's prices included International Flavors & Fragrances, off 1/4 at 19 3/4; Pittston, down 3/4 at 29, and American Express, which joined the NYSE list this week, unchanged at 38 1/4.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped back 5.43 to 936.48, after an advance of 16.37 points in the past four sessions.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totalled 21.28 million shares, down from 27.80 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index was down .18 at 54.59.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index eased .02 to 114.92.

Saccharin Hearing Generates Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government will look at keeping saccharin-sweetened diet soft drinks on the market for diabetics, but admits the chances are slim.

"Lots of folks would like to find a way to do that," FDA commissioner Donald Kennedy says, but "the difficulty is how to make it available to those people without spreading the risk (of cancer) throughout the country."

Kennedy clearly was impressed by the parade of diabetics, parents of diabetics and doctors who told two days of hearings that ended Thursday of the plight of diabetics under the FDA's saccharin ban, which will take effect in July.

"We're going to look at it," the commissioner said as he left the hearings on the ban of saccharin from foods, beverages, drugs and cosmetics but permit its sale as a single-ingredient, over-the-counter drug.

"The drug and toothpaste issues are fairly easy to deal with," said one FDA official. "But how do you say you'll permit a dangerous food additive on the market for diabetics but not let other people have it? It just wouldn't stand up."

Diabetics must severely restrict their intake of sugar and carbohydrates to avoid a condition known as aketoadicidosis, which can lead to such complications as kidney disease, heart failure, stroke, blindness and gangrene.

The toothpaste industry and dentists joined the fight against the ban, saying that the tiny amounts of saccharin ingested as people brush their teeth are insignificant. Banning the sugar substitute would increase tooth decay because people wouldn't brush if their toothpaste didn't taste good, the witnesses said.

Some 600 prescription drugs also contain saccharin to make them more palatable, and the drug industry wants its products to be exempt from the ban.

The FDA can make exceptions for drugs and cosmetics if it decides the benefits outweigh the risks. But no such legal option exists for food additives, where products must be safe and free of cancer-causing ingredients to be marketed.

The FDA based its ban on a study by Canadian scientists that showed high doses of saccharin caused cancer in laboratory rats.

Laughing Gas Making Surprising Comeback

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Most people think of laughing gas as a painkiller that went out with the days when dentists doubled as barbers or public executioners.

But laughing gas — also known less frivolously as nitrous oxide — is making a comeback.

A growing number of dentists, particularly in larger cities on both coasts, are offering their patients nitrous oxide to ease the pain and anxiety of dental work.

But some people — not dentists — have discovered it can be used to ease the pain and anxiety of life as well. For instance, someone raided a dental supply house in Concord, N.H., three times last December, taking cylinders of nitrous oxide. The manager told police laughing gas is the latest party entertainment.

So laughing gas's new life is a double one. More and more nitrous freaks use the stuff to get high; meanwhile, the American Dental Association says 20 to 30 per cent of all dentists — many of them younger practitioners — now give it to their patients.

"I don't like to go to the dentist myself," says Dr. Joseph Tregaskes, a Richmond, Va., dental professor and prosthodontist. "So if I think nitrous can reduce a patient's anxiety, I offer it. It's a very pleasant experience."

Tregaskes says the colorless gas is well-suited to dentistry as an analgesic; the patient never loses consciousness and can cooperate with the doctor.

A machine regulates the gaseous mixture of oxygen and nitrous oxide, each of which comes tanked in pure form. The patient inhales the mixture from a mask. After a few minutes the body begins to tingle and the patient becomes lightheaded, mildly euphoric and utterly detached — even as the drill goes to work.

Nitrous oxide's renaissance reflects a growing concern in dentistry for the patient's comfort. Despite the advent of the high-speed drill and novocaine, the profession still is not far from the days when the crude forceps was an instrument of torture. Most people hate to go to the dentist.

Laughing gas started out in the last century as an entertainment in parlors and carnival shows, and there are indications it's again fated for extensive nonclinical use. It has been carted off to an occasional party by dental students over the years, and nitrous freaks are springing up in New York and the West Coast.

Federal law prohibits distribution of the gas to unauthorized persons, but there are commercial and industrial uses for which it may be purchased legally.

Pure nitrous oxide can be deadly — it replaces oxygen in the lungs. Also, those who inhale the gas from commercial cartridges risk breathing asbestos from valve lubricants. Inhaling directly off a tank can produce frozen lungs, the result of gas expanding from a liquid or pressurized state to a gaseous or expanded state.

Accordingly, many nitrous freaks inhale from a balloon, giving the gas time to warm up. It also affords a dubious safety valve to those who overindulge: if the user starts to pass out, the balloon falls away from the mouth and oxygen enters the lungs.

The first widespread use of laughing gas in the mid-1800s was also non-clinical. Itinerant chemists gave sideshow demonstrations of the gas at carnivals and fairs. Meanwhile, doctors and dentists were searching frantically for a painkiller more subtle than whisky.

In 1844 Dr. Horace Wells stumbled onto such a show in Hartford, Conn. He noticed that one of the volunteers called onto the stage to inhale cut his leg on the back of a bench while staggering around in a nitrous-induced daze. But the man didn't seem bothered by the cut.

The next day Wells inhaled nitrous oxide deeply and had another dentist extract one of his teeth. The operation was painless, and laughing gas — which had been developed and under-estimated by scientific giants such as Joseph Priestley and Humphrey Davy — was on its way to legitimacy.

That path was not always smooth, and nitrous oxide has come in and out of medical vogue several times since then. It now seems to have found a limited role as a dental analgesic. Its desirability as general anesthesia outside a hospital setting remains a subject of medical debate.

There is a cloud hovering over the dental use (and illegal use, for that matter) of laughing gas. The U. S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration is investigating reports that prolonged exposure to a variety of gases used by dentists — including nitrous oxide — can produce maladies ranging from headaches to spontaneous abortions in operating room personnel (not patients).

If so, dentists will have to install systems to blow these waste gases out of their operating rooms. Dr. Thomas Jones, head of an ADA ad hoc committee, says such equipment could cost a practitioner several thousand dollars. "The cost will be passed on to the patient," he said.

Shep Fields Surfaces As Movie Producer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Those who lived through the Big Band era of the 1930s and 1940s will find a familiar name among the credits for the new movie, "Citizen Band" — Shep Fields.

The name conjures the lilting sounds of the Rippling Rhythm Orchestra with its opening signature of bubbles blown through a straw. For 30 years the Shep Fields music provided entertainment for radio and phonograph listeners and ballroom dancers throughout the nation.

At 66 he has turned to a new profession. He is executive producer of "Citizens Band," a Paramount Picture produced by his brother, Freddie Fields. The film is being released nationally this month, and is part of a trend toward CB radio films (others: "Breaker Breaker," "Smokey and the Bandit," "Convoy").

"Citizens Band" is an amusing and sometimes touching treatment of how CB affects the lives of people in a small town. The inception of the project, says Freddie Fields, came from his own son. The 17-year-old has a high I.Q. but was unable to communicate. A CB radio changed that.

"By talking to strangers on the radio he was able to open up to his family and friends," said Freddie Fields, the high-powered agent-turned-producer. "That prompted me to look into the CB phenomenon."

"Why in the 1970s would the number of CB radios jump from half a million to 20 million, with 60 million predicted by the end of the decade? It seems to indicate a strong need to communicate. CB allows people to communicate while still retaining their anonymity."

Newcomer Paul Brickman was hired to write the script, Jonathan Demme ("Caged Heat," "Fighting Mad," "Crazy Mama") to direct. Two graduates of "American Graffiti," Paul Le Mat and Cancy Clark, head the cast. The executive producer: Shep Fields.

What does an executive producer do?

"He is involved creatively, he negotiates the deals, watches the dollars, sees that all goes well during production," said Shep. "And he carries a whip about 12 feet long."

Generating Awareness

One of the more fascinating aspects of the energy search is a new awareness creeping into the public consciousness about what it means to turn on an electrical switch. In the past, to many people it meant nothing special except that a modern convenience many took for granted was activated.

With rising costs and threats of shortages more people are interesting themselves in what it means to throw that switch. One of the more educational ways they can do that is by using an energycycle.

The invention of a Pennsylvania firm, Rodale Resources, the energycycle is nothing more than a small generator operated by pedal power. Resembling a stationary bicycle exerciser, the device is powerful enough to supply the electrical energy for small household appliances. But the inventor emphasizes another advantage, perhaps more important than the electrical output.

An operator receives nothing from the machine until he provides the muscular input, and that can prove enlightening. The inventor claims 20 minutes of pedaling will provide enough energy for 30 minutes of TV viewing. Gauging electrical consumption in that context, a number of users of household conveniences would gain added respect for the "off" button.

The Money Tree

By JIM BISHOP

Money isn't everything. It just seems as though it is. Some earn a little. Others earn a lot. I have never met anyone who was satisfied with what he had.

The man with 10 million wants 11. The workman with $10,000 wants $11,000. Greed is so massive it has become a natural state. Once a year, a writer named Frederick Allen climbs up the money tree for New York magazine to find out who is making how much.

One surprise was Rodolfo Salak, who wasn't doing much of anything. He hit a Las Vegas slot machine for $180,886. Harry Reasoner of ABC earns about $520,000 a year for folding his hands next to Barbara Walters.

Playing the all-time bigot, Archie Bunker, Carroll O'Connor gets over $3 million. Joe Namath got $450,000 last year, but is down to panty hose this year. The pretty co-host of the Today Show, Jane Pauley, smiles and articulates for $125,000, which isn't bad for a kid out of Chicago.

Rosalynn Carter's social secretary, Gretchen Poston, is paid $40,000. The all-time grouch, George Meany, gets $90,000, but his opposite number, Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers, is paid $47,000. O. J. Simpson, who is into football and rented cars, etc., gets $800,000.

Melissa McConnell, an airline stewardess, earns only $9,898 but gets to meet all the rich brutes in the first-class section. A pimp in New York pulls down $54,000 a year. The Republican clerk of the House of Representatives, who also has a small printing business, gets $92,261, more than the congressmen.

Who would swap jobs with Mayor Kenneth Gibson of Newark for $35,000? Not Harold S. Geneen of ITT, who gets $846,398. Nor Henry Ford and Lee Iacocca, each of whom jacked their Ford pay from $333,750 in 1975 to $970,000 this year.

Farrah Fawcett-Majors, she of the flare hair and square jaw, is paid $5,000 per show on "Charlie's Angels." John DeAmara, a New York cop is paid $16,870 in salary and $17,734 in overtime to remain one of New York's finest.

Julius Erving is tall and dark and knows how to shoot a basket for the Philadelphia 76ers at $600,000 a season. And yet, as money becomes cheaper and cheaper, it's hard to beat Columbo, who is paid $500,000 per show for fumbling around in a bent raincoat.

Does anyone know that Joe Califano, Secretary of HEW, gave up $505,490 as a Washington lawyer to earn $66,000 and all the abuse he can absorb for hiring a chef? The President gets $200,000 and pays for his food.

Johnny Carson averages $1.5 million on the Tonight Show, but Mike Douglas tops him with a personal salary of $2 million. Conversely, David Brinkley draws $250,000 for chucking at his own jokes. Compare that with the salary of Chief Justice Warren Burger, who earns $65,600.

Or with Steve Cauthen, the runaway boy jockey, who picked up $254,888 in just the first four months of 1977. Among the spoiled brats of tennis, Jimmy Connors wins $687,335, and Ilie Nastase takes down $576,705. Win or lose, a race horse named Bold Forbes gets the same bag of oats and bran. His owners collect $460,386.

A member of the College of Cardinals, Terence Cooke, is paid $100 a week. But then, we must not confuse true values. A fighter named Muhammad Ali earned $14 million, probably the highest paid person in the world.

Right behind him in earnings is the woman who divorced him — alimony of $2 million or more. Speaking of sacrifices, how about William Blumenthal of Bendix, who dropped $401,205 a year to become Secretary of the Treasury at $66,000?

Some of our public servants are either super patriots or not very bright. Allen found a woman beggar in New York named Anne. She files for income tax at $1,000 a week. It's more than the police commissioner, Michael Codd, gets at $47,093.

Much more than J. Paul Getty Jr. gets. His dad left him a total of $5,000. Book publishers are often pristinely poor, but William Jovanovich of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich yanks $232,500 from the till.

It's only money, folks. It passes from hand to hand. When it is wrinkled and dirty, it is called taxes and goes to the government. Later, it emerges new and crisp and is called welfare...

See Maple Sugar Prices Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm production of maple syrup this year is up 32 per cent from 1976 but prices to consumers probably will be higher than ever.

Syrup production is estimated at 1,221,000 gallons, up from 927,000 last year, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday. But prices at the farm averaged a record $11.67 a gallon, up from $11.48 in 1976.

Vermont was the leading producer with 437,000 gallons, followed by New York with 320,000 gallons, the department said. Other producers included: Maine 8,000 gallons; Massachusetts 27,000; Michigan 90,000; New Hampshire 74,000; Ohio 88,000; Pennsylvania 47,000, and Wisconsin 130,000.

According to estimates, about 40 per cent of the domestic water supply is used for lawn and yard watering.

"Her toys are too real... she's already sick of housework!"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Years ago I woke up one morning and found that I couldn't move my face. After a few weeks it got better, but I still am lopsided. I've often wondered if some kind of operation could possibly correct my face.

Mr. H. H., S.C.

Dear Mr. H.:

The condition you describe seems to be a facial paralysis known as Bell's palsy. In recent years, early treatment with cortisone in selected cases has reduced the duration of the facial paralysis.

In some instances, an operation known as "decompression of the facial nerve" releases fluid around the nerve and helps return its function.

Facial paralysis that has persisted for many years was, until very recently, almost hopeless as far as reactivating the nerves and muscles of the face.

Recently, an operation was conceived by Dr. Harvey M. Tucker, of the Cleveland Clinic. In a procedure that is far too complicated to describe here, Dr. Tucker "borrowed" nerves and muscles from nearby parts of the face and was able to repair the facial deformity.

One of the most dramatic cases he recorded was a 43-year-old man who had facial paralysis for seven years. Within five weeks of this spectacular operation there was distinct improvement in the patient's ability to move his lips, his face and close his eyes.

It might be wise to discuss your problem with your physician and find out if you are a candidate for this operation.

After the birth of my baby I had a milk cyst in the left breast. It was very painful, then got better. Is this ever responsible for cancer in later life?

Mrs. J. T., N.H.

Dear Mrs. T.:

A milk cyst, or "galactocoele," only occasionally occurs to a woman who has just given birth to a child. The tiny tube that carries milk to the nipple becomes blocked and enlarged and painful.

Most of these cysts open spontaneously. Rarely is surgery necessary.

There is no relationship between these simple and benign cysts and cancerous tumors in later life. This must be emphasized so that you do not carry the unnecessary burden of fear.

Fraser Takes Reins As UAW President

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Douglas Andrew Fraser, the new president of the United Auto Workers, is saying already that his chief task in the coming years will be to pave the way for "a new generation of leadership" — the younger men who will succeed him.

The 60-year-old Scottish immigrant, who once worked as a metal finisher at a Detroit car plant, was elected Wednesday by delegates to the UAW's national convention.

Fraser is only the third UAW president since World War II — and, like his predecessors, he is of the UAW's founding generation.

He succeeds retiring president Leonard Woodcock, 66, who has been named chief U.S. envoy to China. Walter Reuther headed the union from 1946 until his death in 1970.

Between now and 1983 — when Fraser will reach the mandatory retirement age — the union will lose its top leaders, all associates and proteges of Reuther.

"In the years immediately ahead we're going to have to be concerned about finding a new generation of leadership in our union," Fraser said after his election. "It is vitally important."

Fraser, a liberal social activist in the Reuther tradition, had been Woodcock's heir-apparent for the $47,000-a-year post since January, when other top officers said they wouldn't run against him for the presidency of the 1.4-million member union.

He encountered some brief, token opposition on Wednesday, however, when a Local 600 leader from Dearborn, Mich., Henry Wilson, nominated himself for president to protest the lack of blacks in top leadership positions in the union. About 20 per cent of the members are black. Wilson withdrew his name part-way through the balloting.

Houses Face Demolition

PENINSULA, Ohio (AP) — Owners of homes still under construction are troubled today by a federal official's insistence that their land must become part of the new Cuyahoga Valley National Recreation Area.

The bind involves four lots, Sagamore Hills Township, the Summit County building department and the National Park Service.

William C. Birdsall, the recreation area's superintendent, says the park service has ordered the Army Corps of Engineers to acquire the property immediately.

"The houses will absolutely be demolished, and we will return that area to its parklike condition," Birdsall said Wednesday.

"It is unfortunate that the property owners are caught in the middle," he added. "It's also unfortunate that we will now have to invest this kind of money."

He and other officials said the land was shown as much as 2½ years ago to be part of that which the park is to include.

Township Clerk and zoning inspector Mary Gatling says she notified the park service by letter in March and May that building permits were requested. She says that when she got no response, "I issued the permits on the assumption there were no objections."

Generating Awareness

One of the more fascinating aspects of the energy search is a new awareness creeping into the public consciousness about what it means to turn on an electrical switch. In the past, to many people it meant nothing special except that a modern convenience many took for granted was activated.

With rising costs and threats of shortages more people are interesting themselves in what it means to throw that switch. One of the more educational ways they can do that is by using an energycycle.

The invention of a Pennsylvania firm, Rodale Resources, the energycycle is nothing more than a small generator operated by pedal power. Resembling a stationary bicycle exerciser, the device is powerful enough to supply the electrical energy for small household appliances. But the inventor emphasizes another advantage, perhaps more important than the electrical output.

An operator receives nothing from the machine until he provides the muscular input, and that can prove enlightening. The inventor claims 20 minutes of pedaling will provide enough energy for 30 minutes of TV viewing. Gauging electrical consumption in that context, a number of users of household conveniences would gain added respect for the "off" button.

The Money Tree

By JIM BISHOP

Money isn't everything. It just seems as though it is. Some earn a little. Others earn a lot. I have never met anyone who was satisfied with what he had.

The man with 10 million wants 11. The workman with $10,000 wants $11,000. Greed is so massive it has become a natural state. Once a year, a writer named Frederick Allen climbs up the money tree for New York magazine to find out who is making how much.

One surprise was Rodolfo Salak, who wasn't doing much of anything. He hit a Las Vegas slot machine for $180,886. Harry Reasoner of ABC earns about $520,000 a year for folding his hands

next to Barbara Walters.

Playing the all-time bigot, Archie Bunker, Carroll O'Connor got $3 million. Joe Namath got $450,000 last year, but is down to panty hose this year. The pretty co-host of the Today Show, Jane Pauley, smiles and articulates for $125,000, which isn't bad for a kid out of Chicago.

Rosalynn Carter's social secretary, Gretchen Poston, is paid $40,000. The all-time grouch, George Meany, gets $90,000, but his opposite number, Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers, is paid $47,000. O. J. Simpson, who is into football and rented cars, etc., gets $800,000.

Melissa McConnell, an airline stew-

ardess, earns only $9,898 but gets to meet all the rich brutes in the first-class section. A pimp in New York pulls down $54,000 a year. The Republican clerk of the House of Representatives, who also has a small printing business, gets $92,261, more than the congressmen.

Who would swap jobs with Mayor Kenneth Gibson of Newark for $35,000? Not Harold S. Geneen of ITT, who gets $846,398. Nor Henry Ford and Lee Iacocca, each of whom jacked their Ford pay from $333,750 in 1975 to $970,000 this year.

Farrah Fawcett-Majors, she of the flare hair and square jaw, is paid $5,000 per show on "Charlie's Angels." John DeAmara, a New York cop is paid $16,870 in salary and $17,734 in overtime to remain one of New York's finest.

Julius Erving is tall and dark and knows how to shoot a basket for the Philadelphia 76ers at $600,000 a season. And yet, as money becomes cheaper and cheaper, it's hard to beat Columbo, who is paid $500,000 per show for fumbling around in a bent raincoat.

Does anyone know that Joe Califano, Secretary of HEW, gave up $505,490 as a Washington lawyer to earn $66,000 and all the abuse he can absorb for hiring a chef? The President gets $200,000 and pays for his food.

Johnny Carson averages $1.5 million on the Tonight Show, but Mike Douglas tops him with a personal salary of $2 million. Conversely, David Brinkley draws $250,000 for chucking at his own jokes. Compare that with the salary of Chief Justice Warren Burger, who earns $65,600.

Or with Steve Caution, the runaway boy jockey, who picked up $254,888 in just the first four months of 1977. Among the spoiled brats of tennis, Jimmy Connors wins $687,335, and Ilie Nastase takes down $576,705. Win or lose, a race horse named Bold Forbes gets the same bag of oats and bran. His owners collect $460,386.

A member of the College of Cardinals, Terence Cooke, is paid $100 a week. But then, we must not confuse true values. A fighter named Muhammad Ali earned $14 million, probably the highest paid person in the world.

Right behind him in earnings is the woman who divorced him — alimony of $2 million or more. Speaking of sacrifices, how about William Blumenthal of Bendix, who dropped $401,205 a year to become Secretary of the Treasury at $66,000?

Some of our public servants are either super patriots or not very bright. Allen found a woman beggar in New York named Anne. She files for income tax at $1,000 a week. It's more than the police commissioner, Michael Codd, gets at $47,093.

Much more than J. Paul Getty Jr. gets. His dad left him a total of $5,000. Book publishers are often pristinely poor, but William Jovanovich of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich yanks $232,500 from the till.

It's only money, folks. It passes from hand to hand. When it is wrinkled and dirty, it is called taxes and goes to the government. Later, it emerges new and crisp and is called welfare...

See Maple Sugar Prices Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm production of maple syrup this year is up 32 per cent from 1976 but prices to consumers probably will be higher than ever.

Syrup production is estimated at 1,221,000 gallons, up from 927,000 last year, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday. But prices at the farm averaged a record $11.67 a gallon, up from $11.48 in 1976.

Vermont was the leading producer with 437,000 gallons, followed by New York with 320,000 gallons, the department said. Other producers included: Maine 8,000 gallons; Massachusetts 27,000; Michigan 90,000; New Hampshire 74,000; Ohio 88,000; Pennsylvania 47,000, and Wisconsin 130,000.

According to estimates, about 40 per cent of the domestic water supply is used for lawn and yard watering.

War Veterans

To Gain Benefit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — World war veterans of armed forces in Poland or Czechoslovakia who later became U.S. citizens would be eligible for admission to the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Home, under a bill pending in the legislature.

The House approved 85-4 and sent the Senate on Thursday the bill under which such veterans may file their discharges at county recorders' offices, making them eligible for admission.

Debate flared briefly in the House over an amendment by Rep. Walter D. McClaskey, R-86 Marion, under which no veteran who fought in either world war against the United States would qualify.

The House voted down McClaskey's amendment after Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, asserted it would be impossible "for some county bureaucrat" to determine on whose side a veteran had fought.

Under the measure, approved 85-4, a Polish or Czechoslovakian veteran would have to have been a citizen of the U.S. for 10 years, in order to qualify. McClaskey was among those voting against the bill.

He said that all tenth and eleventh grade students attending Adena, Bishop Flaget, Chillicothe, Circleville, Huntington, Logan Elm, Paint Valley, Southeastern, Unioto, Westfall and Zane Trace High Schools, who have an interest in attending the Vocational Center, but have not yet made application, should do so as soon as possible for the programs that still have openings.

Interested students and their parents should contact their home school counselor regarding details. Letters of acceptance will be sent to all parents of accepted students. Acceptance certificates will also be presented directly to each placed student at their school by their home school counselor.

A special orientation program for accepted students and their parents will be held at the Vocational Center, Wednesday, May 25, 1977, at 7:00 p.m. This program will attempt to provide parents and accepted students with information about the Vocational Center's facilities, curriculum, and policies.

The school day at the Vocational Center will run from 8:45 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. Students will spend 3 hours a day in laboratory or shop experiences in their major area of study, plus 1½ hours a day in related class work. The remaining 1 hour of the school day will be spent studying an academic subject: English for 11th grade students and American History-Government for 12th grade students. During a portion of the day, students in co-op programs will be placed out on a job in the community.

There will be no tuition charge for students who enter the Vocational Center from one of the participating school districts. However, students will be expected to pay for protective clothing and some materials. In addition, some students will begin to acquire the tools necessary for entry into their selected occupation.

The home schools will provide bus transportation for students to and from the Vocational Center each day. Students may elect to drive to school providing that they seek parental and school permission. Some programs such as co-op programs may require that students furnish their own transportation.

Students who successfully complete their regular course work at the Vocational Center and pass all state minimum course requirements at their home school, will graduate from their home high school with a regular high school diploma. Students attending the Vocational Center will also be eligible to participate in their home schools athletic and extra-curricular activities.

War Veterans To Gain Benefit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — World war veterans of armed forces in Poland or Czechoslovakia who later became U.S. citizens would be eligible for admission to the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Home, under a bill pending in the legislature.

The House approved 85-4 and sent the Senate on Thursday the bill under which such veterans may file their discharges at county recorders' offices, making them eligible for admission.

Debate flared briefly in the House over an amendment by Rep. Walter D. McClaskey, R-86 Marion, under which no veteran who fought in either world war against the United States would qualify.

The House voted down McClaskey's amendment after Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, asserted it would be impossible "for some county bureaucrat" to determine on whose side a veteran had fought.

Under the measure, approved 85-4, a Polish or Czechoslovakian veteran would have to have been a citizen of the U.S. for 10 years, in order to qualify. McClaskey was among those voting against the bill.

Historical Society Is Setting For DAR Meeting

Pickaway Plains Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution met in the meeting room of the Pickaway County Historical Society Museum, May 17, at 2:15 p.m. Mrs. Henry Bartholomew, regent, opened the meeting in ritualistic form assisted by the chaplain, Mrs. Emerson Spicer. The Pledge to the Flag was led by Mrs. Spicer, followed by the singing of the Star-Spangled Banner with Mrs. Joseph Peters as accompanist.

The President General, Mrs. Wakelee Rawson Smith's, message was read by Mrs. O.C. West.

Mrs. J. Austin Dowden, Chapter National Defense chairman, read from the May issue of the National Defender "Americans Want Civil Defense". The article revealed that although Americans show a lack of awareness regarding our Civil Defense System, considerable support is found for greater protection of the populace. She also read "The National Debt in the 20th Century" from the Congressional Record. It showed our nearest billion dollar debt in 1900 to be one billion dollars, showing a gradual increase until 1919 when it reached 25 billion. A slight decrease followed, but increased at a rapid pace to 72 billion during World War II. At the present time it is 727 billion with an estimate of 802 billion for 1978.

Mrs. Emerson Spicer, chaplain, conducted memorial service for the deceased members during the past year. They were Mrs. Robert (Blanche Borrer) Graham, Mrs. Robert (Mary Richardson) Spangler, Mrs. J. Leroy (Mary E. Huber) Frazier and Mrs. Jay (Roberta Cromley) Hay. The graves will be marked in June.

Mrs. Joseph Peters, was in charge of the May program, and showed slides of "Dresses of the First Ladies of the White House". Mrs. Peters narrated each one from Mrs. George Washington to Mrs. Richard Nixon. The elaborate gowns of the First Ladies showed the change of styles through the years.

Mrs. J. Austin Dowden reported on plans for the annual June luncheon to be at the Wardell Party Home, June 21, at 12:30 p.m. Make reservations by June 17 to Mrs. J. Austin Dowden, 130 Seyfert Ave. or phone 474-5182 or Mrs. George C. McGhee, 24920 Locust Grove Rd. Williamsport, Ohio 43164 or phone 986-2201.

Meeting was adjourned by the regent.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Martin Cromley, Miss Eliza Plum, Mrs. Judd Dresbach, Mrs. Clarence Squire, Mrs. Earl Wilson, Mrs. Russell Skaggs, Mrs. Curtis Cromley, Mrs. Charles Beckman, Mrs. T.L. Wilson, Mrs. William Trego, and Miss Kimberly Frazier.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Tradesman A Plain Clothes Professional

DEAR ABBY: After years of reading your column you finally pushed the "write" button.

To PUZZLED IN FLORIDA who can't find anyone to do her repairs or remodeling, here are some reasons for the shortage of good professional craftsmen.

Many people have the idea that people who wear work clothes should work for peanuts. I charge $12 per hour and do top-quality work. After I pay the expenses of my truck and tools, license fees, insurance, etc. I'm lucky to have $9 left. And considering the time I spend, without compensation, making up bids, talking to customers and material suppliers, and doing paper work, I might net $7 per hour before taxes for the 2,000 or so hours I spend working hard in a year's time.

People who ask for estimates on remodeling or repair jobs are sometimes slow to make up their minds. They think my time should be free, but they gladly pay $30 to $50 per hour to talk to a doctor, lawyer or accountant.

When people learn to treat professionals in work clothes with as much respect as they treat professionals in suits and ties, good craftsmen will be easier to find.

TIED OF PEANUTS

DEAR TIRED: Hooray for your side. I couldn't agree more.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's widowed mother has made her home with us for the past 22 years. She was not a built-in-babysitter for our children or a servant. (Fortunately we have always had help.)

Lately my mother-in-law has become difficult to live with, and even violent. Her health is failing fast, and she constantly accuses us of trying to do away with her for her "money." (She doesn't have any.)

She has made such a madhouse out of our home that our teenage children can no longer have their friends over. My wife and I have discussed putting her mother in a fine rest home, but my wife's only worry is, "What will people say if I send my own mother away to be cared for by strangers?"

If you have a comment on this, I would like to see in print.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Elderly people who pose such problems in the homes of their children should be cared for in rest homes, if possible, for their own sakes and those of their children. Of all the reasons for refusing to send her, "What will people say?" is by far the poorest.

DEAR ABBY: I am tall, handsome, intelligent, sincere, divorced, 43 and broke.

I would like to remarry. The women's age, shape or looks are of no consequence... as long as she's rich. I hope you'll agree to play matchmaker. And you may publish my real name and address because I am on the level.

HONOLULU

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Tradesman A Plain Clothes Professional

DEAR ABBY: After years of reading your column you finally pushed the "write" button.

To PUZZLED IN FLORIDA who can't find anyone to do her repairs or remodeling, here are some reasons for the shortage of good professional craftsmen.

Many people have the idea that people who wear work clothes should work for peanuts. I charge $12 per hour and do top-quality work. After I pay the expenses of my truck and tools, license fees, insurance, etc. I'm lucky to have $9 left. And considering the time I spend, without compensation, making up bids, talking to customers and material suppliers, and doing paper work, I might net $7 per hour before taxes for the 2,000 or so hours I spend working hard in a year's time.

People who ask for estimates on remodeling or repair jobs are sometimes slow to make up their minds. They think my time should be free, but they gladly pay $30 to $50 per hour to talk to a doctor, lawyer or accountant.

When people learn to treat professionals in work clothes with as much respect as they treat professionals in suits and ties, good craftsmen will be easier to find.

TIRED OF PEANUTS
DEAR TIRED: Hooray for your side. I couldn't agree more.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's widowed mother has made her home with us for the past 22 years. She was not a built-in-babysitter for our children or a servant. (Fortunately we have always had help.)

Lately my mother-in-law has become difficult to live with, and even violent. Her health is failing fast, and she constantly accuses us of trying to do away with her for her "money." (She doesn't have any.)

She has made such a madhouse out of our home that our teenage children can no longer have their friends over. My wife and I have discussed putting her mother in a fine rest home, but my wife's only worry is, "What will people say if I send my own mother away to be cared for by strangers?"

If you have a comment on this, I would like to see in print.

NAMELESS, PLEASE
DEAR NAMELESS: Elderly people who pose such problems in the homes of their children should be cared for in rest homes, if possible, for their own sakes and those of their children. Of all the reasons for refusing to send her, "What will people say?" is by far the poorest.

DEAR ABBY: I am tall, handsome, intelligent, sincere, divorced, 43 and broke.

I would like to remarry. The women's age, shape or looks are of no consequence . . . as long as she's rich. I hope you'll agree to play matchmaker. And you may publish my real name and address because I am on the level.

School Play: A Magic Moment

OLD TAPPAN, N.J. (AP) — Apple blossoms and lilac sweetened the air and in the clean spring sky the stars

Rapist Terrorizes Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The rapist has promised to kill. So far he hasn't, but this city lives in fear.

Porch lights burn all night. Lock sales have soared. A citizen's group is offering a reward of more than $10,000. There is talk of vigilante groups cruising the streets with CB radios in search of the man.

Since October 1975, at least 23 women have been attacked by a young white male known as "the east area rapist" because he strikes repeatedly in the same middle and upper-middle income neighborhoods of modern, spacious homes east of the state Capitol.

The last victim was raped Tuesday night. She said the rapist promised he would kill two people if he saw stories about the attack.

"There are people who have reported they are sleeping in shifts and that sort of thing," says Bill Miller, press spokesman for the Sacramento County Sheriff's Department.

"Wednesday night we had 2,500 more calls through the switchboard than we normally have. Over 2,000 were calling with information they thought would help catch the rapist. And there were more calls about prowlers and suspicious persons," Miller said.

Sheriff's deputies say they think they can tie the 23 rapes to one man between 19 and 30 with dark blond or brown hair.

In his earlier attacks, the rapist broke into homes where no man was present. But he is growing bolder. Now he also strikes in homes where husbands lie sleeping beside their wives. They wake to find the rapist pointing a gun at them.

He usually wears gloves and some sort of hood or mask with small slits for his eyes and mouth. Typically, he rummages around a house and robs before leaving. He ties up his victims.

The sheriff's department won't say how many people it has working on the case.

"We're doing the maximum," says Miller. But he admits the department is no closer to knowing who the rapist is than it was months ago.

shone as if the only target of heaven's light was this very small spot on this very large planet on this very special night, the night of the school play.

The seventh and eighth grade pupils of Charles De Wolf School performed "The Sound of Music."

When the play was done on Broadway, 25 miles away, it could not have been the hit it was this night because a school play is more than a performance.

"I confess I choked up four or five times," said Carmen Boscia, the teacher who directed the play. "What a good feeling I had watching them, seeing the result of all their hard work."

"Some of the kids wanted to put it on again, a second showing for a different audience. You can't. A school play is a fulfillment. You plan and work and rehearse from the beginning of school, from 'way back in September, for this one moment and that's it. You can't recapture the moment."

No, you can't. And, yes, what a good feeling everybody else had too.

Old Tappan is a village of 3,000 with the same concerns and woes of similar towns across the country, the same neighborhood squabbles and village disagreements, and for that one moment, the night of the school play, all unpleasantness vanishes.

For that one moment in the springtime neighbors get together and sit on folding chairs in a stuffy gymnasium and feel pride and warmth and joy.

They are in their own school and

Discipleship Is Topic Of CBC Choir

The public is invited to a presentation by the Circleville Bible College Choir of "Celebration of Discipleship" by Don Hustad. The musical is centered around the vision of Isaiah found in Isaiah 6.

The emphasis of the musical is on missions with the response "Here am I, send me" recurring throughout.

Hustad is a well-known composer of sacred music as well as Billy Graham Crusade organist.

The director of the choir is Gary L. Hubart who will also sing the baritone solos portraying Isaiah. The presentation will be Saturday at 8 p.m., at the Campus Church of Christ in Christian Union on the campus of Circleville Bible College on Route 22 east.

those stage props are their own lawn furniture and table lamps and those are their own children doing something terribly decent and if Carmen Boscia thinks he choked up he should have heard the sniffling in the audience when those young, trembling voices sang "Edelweiss."

If it was a carefree time for the audience, it was just the opposite for the cast.

They had, indeed, prepared since September, staying after school, taking time from their lunch periods, practicing their lines at home. Now was the moment of truth. Backstage, before the opening curtain, the tension was palpable.

They seemed so small, their burdens so large. Rouged and costumed, they could not sit still. They paced. They talked in whispers. They crammed a last look at the script. They checked and rechecked one another's appearance.

Once the evening's program began, though, the nervousness ended.

First a selection of songs by the chorus, 110 healthy voices singing of hope and promise, of being on top of the world, of Abraham, Martin and John, a dozen songs done in three-part harmony and no professional choir could have done them better, ask anyone in the audience.

Then the play, and no Broadway cast could have performed it better either, another fact the audience agreed on wholeheartedly.

When it was over the parents, neighbors, lingered longer than usual outside the school, clinging to the magic of the evening. They chatted, told one another how well their children had done, enjoyed one another's company.

The cast did not linger. The cast, still in costumes and makeup, went laughing off to Friendly's ice cream parlor. They had earned a treat.

State Does Cash Balancing Act

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Its still an iffy situation, but the state should finish the fiscal year on June 30 with its debts paid and its books in order, Budget Director William W. Wilkins says.

"The revenue situation for April was not good," Wilkins reported earlier this week to legislative budget-planners. "We had projected $381.4 million for the month but only realized $334 million."

Translated that means state government took in $47 million less from a variety of revenue sources, including taxes, that Wilkins had anticipated.

And then the ifs.

"If we make up the revenue shortfall from last month and if none of the $12 million in the emergency fund is spent," Wilkins said, "We will end the year with $60 million in cash and at least that much in outstanding bills and liabilities."

To accomplish that balancing act, the 33-year-old budget chief asked the State Controlling Board to reject a $10.1 million request from the Department of Public Welfare, even though he agreed it was needed for health care accounts.

The effect, depending on the volume of Medicaid use, could be to delay state reimbursement payments until after July 1 to some health care providers, including nursing homes. Services should not be affected, Wilkins said.

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, has visited legislatures in 10 other states in his role as chairman of the Midwest Council of State Governments.

"So far, I wouldn't trade Ohio's (legislature) for any one of them," the senator commented this week. Some apparently do have considerably better fringe benefits, however.

Last week, Ocasek visited the Michigan legislature at Lansing, and came back telling colleagues not to fret about suggestions that Ohio senators shouldn't have the administrative aides assigned to each of them.

In Michigan, he said, every majority Democrat in the Senate has four aides, and each Republican three. He noted that lawmakers in the neighboring states get $22,500 a year plus expenses. Ohio senators and House members get $17,500, and no expenses.

Charles R. (Rocky) Saxbe, the 29-year-old son of former U.S. Atty. Gen. and ex-ambassador William B. Saxbe, has the same relish as his father for chewing tobacco.

A second-term member of the Ohio House from the farm town of Mechanicsburg, the younger Saxbe was spotted during a House session last week fingering a mouth-full of Red Man tobacco.

His father, in the old days when he presided as Republican speaker of the House, kept a spittoon on the rostrum and impressed his colleagues with his never-miss accuracy.

Young Saxbe, asked if he picked up the habit from his father, responded in the negative. "I've been chewing since I was in the sixth grade. Everyone in Mechanicsburg chews tobacco," he said.

First a selection of songs by the chorus, 110 healthy voices singing of hope and promise, of being on top of the world, of Abraham, Martin and John, a dozen songs done in three-part harmony and no professional choir could have done them better, ask anyone in the audience.

Then the play, and no Broadway cast could have performed it better either, another fact the audience agreed on wholeheartedly.

When it was over the parents, neighbors, lingered longer than usual outside the school, clinging to the magic of the evening. They chatted, told one another how well their children had done, enjoyed one another's company.

The cast did not linger. The cast, still in costumes and makeup, went laughing off to Friendly's ice cream parlor. They had earned a treat.

State Does Cash Balancing Act

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Its still an iffy situation, but the state should finish the fiscal year on June 30 with its debts paid and its books in order, Budget Director William W. Wilkins says.

"The revenue situation for April was not good," Wilkins reported earlier this week to legislative budget-planners. "We had projected $381.4 million for the month but only realized $334 million."

Translated that means state government took in $47 million less from a variety of revenue sources, including taxes, that Wilkins had anticipated.

And then the ifs. "If we make up the revenue shortfall from last month and if none of the $12 million in the emergency fund is spent," Wilkins said, "We will end the year with $60 million in cash and at least that much in outstanding bills and liabilities."

To accomplish that balancing act, the 33-year-old budget chief asked the State Controlling Board to reject a $10.1 million request from the Department of Public Welfare, even though he agreed it was needed for health care accounts.

The effect, depending on the volume of Medicaid use, could be to delay state reimbursement payments until after July 1 to some health care providers, including nursing homes. Services should not be affected, Wilkins said.

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasio, D-27 Akron, has visited legislatures in 10 other states in his role as chairman of the Midwest Council of State Governments.

"So far, I wouldn't trade Ohio's (legislature) for any one of them," the senator commented this week. Some apparently do have considerably better fringe benefits, however.

Last week, Ocasio visited the Michigan legislature at Lansing, and came back telling colleagues not to fret about suggestions that Ohio senators shouldn't have the administrative aides assigned to each of them.

In Michigan, he said, every majority Democrat in the Senate has four aides, and each Republican three. He noted that lawmakers in the neighboring states get $22,500 a year plus expenses. Ohio senators and House members get $17,500, and no expenses.

Charles R. (Rocky) Saxbe, the 29-year-old son of former U.S. Atty. Gen. and ex-ambassador William B. Saxbe, has the same relish as his father for chewing tobacco.

A second-term member of the Ohio House from the farm town of Mechanicsburg, the younger Saxbe was spotted during a House session last week fingering a mouth-full of Red Man tobacco.

His father, in the old days when he presided as Republican speaker of the House, kept a spittoon on the rostrum and impressed his colleagues with his never-miss accuracy.

Young Saxbe, asked if he picked up the habit from his father, responded in the negative. "I've been chewing since I was in the sixth grade. Everyone in Mechanicsburg chews tobacco," he said.

Forecast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohioans can expect little change in the weather for the next few days.

Skies will be mostly clear, with winds light and temperatures well above normal. With these conditions, there is always the chance of a few thundershowers, but the National Weather Service says they will be brief and widely scattered.

Scattered showers fell in the state Thursday night, mainly in the southern sections. They were heaviest in the Cincinnati area, where nearly one quarter inch of rain was reported.

But by dawn today, skies were clear again throughout the state. Temperatures at dawn were varied, with Youngstown reporting 52 degrees and Cincinnati holding at 64 degrees.

Tonight should be clear and mild, with a low in the upper 50s and lower 60s. The outlook Saturday is sunny and warm, with highs in the 80s.

CENTRAL SOUTHEAST SOUTHWEST

Clear tonight. Low near 60. Sunny and continued warm Saturday. High in the middle upper 80s. Probability of rain 20 per cent tonight and Saturday.

Madtom Catfish Halts Work

MEMPHIS (AP) — Reserve a space for West Tennessee's madtom catfish alongside the snail darter. Like its endangered species cousin to the east, it, too, threatens to tangle a federal water project.

The madtom catfish, known scientifically as "Noturus stigmosus," took center stage earlier this week when opponents of the Obion and Forked Deer River channel improvement project took their fight into federal court again.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers' plans for making new river channels in the area have been involved in legal controversy since 1970 when a group of Nashville environmentalists and duck hunters filed suit to halt the project. They argued that the channelization would harm the wetlands and drive off many species of ducks.

At a hearing Wednesday before U.S. Dist. Court Judge Bailey Brown, a Nashville attorney representing the environmentalists said the plaintiffs were amending their complaints to claim that channelization also would harm an endangered species — "the well-known noturus stigmosus" — or madtom catfish.

Attorney Charles Warfield said Dr. David Edinhover of the University of Tennessee, a member of the Endangered Species Committee of the American Fisheries Society, had found the madtom catfish in the Obion and Forked Deer.

Barrett Ashley of Dyersburg, who represents persons in favor of having the channelization work completed, challenged Warfield's revelation.

"Although I have never seen one, those who have told me that our madtom catfish is not the madtom catfish that is an endangered species," Ashley said.

Insurance Promise Has Fine Print

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every insurance policy has its fine print, to tell you what isn't covered. So does President Carter's promise of national health insurance, a policy he said will be in effect before he leaves the White House.

But it may take a while, given his cautionary notes on timing and on financing.

Those fine print points are likely to temper the rejoicing of Democrats who are pressing for swift creation of a system of mandatory health insurance to cover all Americans. But they aren't complaining now. They have what they think is a concession from the administration.

Carter left that impression without significantly changing anything. He has long been committed to national health insurance. And the administration has an advisory committee at work on specific proposals.

The President did say he will have a proposal ready for Congress early next year. But he didn't say what will be in it, nor did he say when it might take effect if passed.

Carter's record on the issue is one of commitment with caution. He has not said whether he wants national health insurance built around the existing system of private coverage, or run entirely by the government. And he tied his campaign promises to the availability of money to pay the insurance bill.

The White House catalogue of his campaign promises calls for national health insurance "phasing in as revenues permit," and beginning in the areas of greatest need, with the elderly and with maternal and infant care.

It calls for "eventual universal and mandatory participation; eventual compulsory coverage." It also says the private health insurance industry is to have "a productive role" in the Carter plan, and that the system will be financed through a combination of payroll taxes and income tax revenues.

Those guidelines have not been amended publicly, and they point to a more cautious beginning than some congressional Democrats are advocating. Addressing the United Auto Workers, which has championed national health insurance for a decade, Carter spoke of phasing a workable system.

"We are aiming to submit legislative proposals early next year," he said.

That timetable satisfied Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a leading sponsor of health insurance legislation, who had questioned Carter's commitment on the issue.

Kennedy said he was encouraged to have a clear indication of the administration's timetable.

"I want this program to be established during my time in office," Carter said. If re-elected, he would be there through 1984.

Caleb Atwater, who wrote Ohio's first history, said of the state: "Our position in the nation is peculiarly felicitous, as to soil, climate and productions, and it will be our own fault if we are not the happiest people in the Union." — AP

Kids and Calves

Little Moo should grow up into a fine milk cow. She has good blood lines. Her future reasonable human attention can assure.

Bobby's tomorrow — that's another question. Excellent blood lines, of course. Attention will be more than reasonable. Bobby is loved!

But a kid's future isn't fashioned in the meadow or barn. Not even in the home and school.

Ideas and ideals will mold Bobby's tomorrow. Convictions and principles will shape his character. These can be exemplified at home and practiced at school. But they're taught best and developed most surely in the educational and youth programs of the Church.

Make next Sunday the threshold of a bright tomorrow for your son or daughter.

9 Central Murder
Figure Dies

CINCINNATI (AP) — Robert V. Lyons, central figure in the "Meter Reader" murder case—one of the most notorious in Cincinnati crime annals—has died of an apparent heart attack.

Police said the body of Lyons, 65, was found on a landing outside his East Side apartment.

Lyons was found innocent Nov. 23, 1956, of the murder of 34-year-old socialite Audrey Evers Pugh in her fashionable home earlier that year.

Police had relied heavily on a confession by Lyons, but he repudiated the statement during the trial, saying he was "brow-beaten into it." Police said they kept the case open but there were no more arrests.

The sensational case was highlighted by the work of defense attorney William "Foss" Hopkins, who died in February. Hopkins devoted a chapter to the trial in his autobiography, "Murder Is My Business."

Lyons slipped quietly back into obscurity after the Civil Service Commission forced the city to give him his job back with the Cincinnati Water Department. However, he was assigned to repairing meters and no longer sent to homes to read them.

Police said they do not suspect foul play and that Lyons possibly may have died of a heart attack.

House Defeats Commission Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The House has defeated 52-38 a measure which would permit county commissioners to employ legal counsel, in addition to services already received from county prosecutors.

Rep. John P. Wargo, D-2 Lisbon, and others assailed the measure Thursday as unnecessary, and a potential waste of taxpayers' money. Supporters said generally that prosecutors, at least in major counties, are too busy to assist commissioners with legal problems.

TAKING A BACK SEAT — Little Ben Davis takes a back seat as his mother Wendy and other graduates participate at the spring commencement at Sacramento, California's California State University.

Ban On Saccharin Comes Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diet soft drink industry is challenging the studies the Food and Drug Administration used as a basis for its ban on saccharin as a food additive.

Dr. Bernard L. Oser, a consultant hired by the industry's Calorie Control Council, told an FDA hearing Wednesday that the tests were inconclusive and premature.

The hearings, conducted by FDA commissioner Donald Kennedy, resumed today.

Oser's view was disputed by several consumer groups, including the Environmental Defense Fund, the Federation of Homemakers of America and Ralph Nader's Health Research Group.

Oser said the high-dose experiments on rats may not be a solid basis "for making definitive judgments as to cancer-inducing potential."

He questioned whether such tests in general and the Canadian saccharin test in particular are an appropriate experimental way of determining what causes cancer in people.

"In the absence of even suggestive evidence of any hazard to human health ... it would seem reasonable to defer taking definitive, probably irreversible, steps to remove this useful sweetening agent from foods," he told the FDA panel.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the Nader organization, supported the ban. He said available data show saccharin does not help dieters control their weight. Small dosages, he said, may even increase appetites by lowering blood sugar levels.

More than 20 witnesses testified Wednesday, most of them opposing the FDA ban.

A group from Missouri, including former governor Christopher S. Bond, gave an emotional appeal to preserve diet soft drinks and sugarless gum for diabetic children who must restrict their sugar intake.

Dr. Sebastian G. Ciancio, head of the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Therapeutics, said the association opposes the ban, particularly on toothpastes, mouthwashes and drugs, including those with fluoride.

The ban, which begins in July, will eliminate the sugar substitute from all products but would permit its sale as an over-the-counter drug for diabetics and others on sugar-restricted diets.

Other Nations Eye Saudi Food Buys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia, with its immense oil wealth, is still one of the fastest growing overseas markets for U.S. farmers and food processors but other countries are moving rapidly into the lucrative trade, an Agriculture Department analyst said today.

John D. Parker of the department's Economic Research Service said that despite the fierce competition, U.S. agricultural sales — which include some processed items — are expected to exceed $200 million this year, up from $165 million in 1976.

"Competition from European and Asian suppliers of processed food is keen," Parker said. "Since 1974, France, Denmark and the Netherlands scored great gains in sales of frozen poultry. Australia and Brazil boosted their sales of various meat products. Italy, Spain and Australia are shipping more canned fruits and vegetables."

Parker's analysis was included in the new issue of "Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States," a monthly agency publication.

"Opportunities for constraints on sales of U.S. farm products to Saudi Arabia vary depending on the commodity, the rate of growth in demand, local output, distribution facilities and competition from foreign suppliers," Parker said.

"The United States is Saudi Arabia's leading supplier of wheat flour, rice, vegetable oils, animal feed and some processed food."

Parker, a Middle East trade authority, said the quadrupling of oil prices in 1973 triggered the boom in the Saudi food imports. With sharply higher per capita incomes, consumers have enjoyed larger and more diversified food supplies.

Fuel Allocation Program Readied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Energy and Resource Development Agency announced new procedures today for allocation of federally-appropriated fuel supplies.

The program, handled by ERDA's Office of Petroleum Allocation, was questioned last month by a legislative leader who locked up the petroleum records and began an investigation of last winter's allocations.

Robert S. Ryan, director of ERDA, made no mention of that controversy, but said new guidelines "involve the early release of allocation fuels to prime suppliers and more stringent definitions of hardship and emergency cases."

CBers 'Talking Skip' Angers FCC

WASHINGTON (AP) — To some Citizens Band radio enthusiasts, "skip" is intriguing. To others, it's infuriating. To Uncle Charlie, it's illegal.

"Skip" is the phenomenon in which a radio wave ricochets off the ionosphere back to earth hundreds or even thousands of miles away from the sending station.

Thus, when atmospheric conditions are right, it's not unusual to hear in the Washington area CB stations broadcasting from the Virgin Islands, or British Columbia, or even Colombia, South America.

For CBers using four-watt radios that have difficulty being heard more than 25 miles away, that's intriguing.

But often the skip transmissions are as loud or louder than those of local stations. For those trying to conduct local conversations, that's infuriating.

Partly because of this interference, Berger Finishes

Volunteer Course

Diane Berger has completed the certificate program and received the continuing education credit units in Volunteer Administration from The Ohio State University.

The course which began last fall covered the areas of "How to Succeed With Volunteers," "Designing Creative Volunteer Training Programs," "Planning and Evaluation," "Developing a Functional Recruitment Program," and "Human Relations and Personnel Practices."

Robert L. Lindamood, Director of the Division of Community Services for Franklin County Children's Services and George Kreps, Director of the Department of Volunteer Services for Franklin County Children's Services were the instructors for the course.

Ms. Berger is currently serving as the President of the Pickaway County Volunteers for Youth and is the Coordinator of Personal Advocacy for Developmental Disabilities. Personal Advocacy is affiliated with the Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board and Developmental Disabilities Resources, Inc.

Uncle Charlie lists "talking skip," or using the phenomenon to transmit farther than the 150-mile legal limit, as one of six "trigger violations" that determine his priorities in enforcing CB regulations.

Uncle Charlie, of course, is the Federal Communications Commission to CBers.

The basic concept of CB radio is short-range communication on frequencies that can be used simultaneously in neighboring communities.

This whole concept, however, is abused by CBers talking skip, says Deputy Chief James C. McKinney of the Field Operations Bureau, the FCC's enforcement arm.

In addition to violating the 150-mile limit, CBers talking skip often use illegal linear amplifiers to boost their signals from the legal four-watts to as many as several thousand.

"Whenever we catch someone working skip, we invariably catch him using a linear," McKinney says.

And, because of the interference linears cause to neighborhood television sets, radios and other home electronic entertainment equipment — as well as to other CBs — that means complaints.

The FCC logged about 100,000 such interference complaints last year and anticipates "as many as 200,000 this year," McKinney says.

To try to avoid identification, CBers talking skip also commit a third trigger violation — failure to use their FCC "numbers," or call signs.

And some, to avoid the congestion on the regular 40 CB channels, modify their equipment to enable them to use frequencies reserved for other radio services, another trigger violation.

Penalties for each of the violations usually are FCC fines of $100 a day. Talking on unauthorized channels also can result in criminal charges subject to a year in jail and a $10,000 fine.

9 Central Murder Figure Dies

CINCINNATI (AP) — Robert V. Lyons, central figure in the "Meter Reader" murder case—one of the most notorious in Cincinnati crime annals—has died of an apparent heart attack.

Police said the body of Lyons, 65, was found on a landing outside his East Side apartment.

Lyons was found innocent Nov. 23, 1956, of the murder of 34-year-old socialite Audrey Evers Pugh in her fashionable home earlier that year.

Police had relied heavily on a confession by Lyons, but he repudiated the statement during the trial, saying he was "brow-beaten into it." Police said they kept the case open but there were no more arrests.

The sensational case was highlighted by the work of defense attorney William "Foss" Hopkins, who died in February. Hopkins devoted a chapter to the trial in his autobiography, "Murder Is My Business."

Lyons slipped quietly back into obscurity after the Civil Service Commission forced the city to give him his job back with the Cincinnati Water Department. However, he was assigned to repairing meters and no longer sent to homes to read them.

Police said they do not suspect foul play and that Lyons possibly may have died of a heart attack.

House Defeats Commission Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The House has defeated 52-38 a measure which would permit county commissioners to employ legal counsel, in addition to services already received from county prosecutors.

Rep. John P. Wargo, D-2 Lisbon, and others assailed the measure Thursday as unnecessary, and a potential waste of taxpayers' money. Supporters said generally that prosecutors, at least in major counties, are too busy to assist commissioners with legal problems.

Ban On Saccharin Comes Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diet soft drink industry is challenging the studies the Food and Drug Administration used as a basis for its ban on saccharin as a food additive.

Dr. Bernard L. Oser, a consultant hired by the industry's Calorie Control Council, told an FDA hearing Wednesday that the tests were inconclusive and premature.

The hearings, conducted by FDA commissioner Donald Kennedy, resumed today.

Oser's view was disputed by several consumer groups, including the Environmental Defense Fund, the Federation of Homemakers of America and Ralph Nader's Health Research Group.

Oser said the high-dose experiments on rats may not be a solid basis "for making definitive judgments as to cancer-inducing potential."

He questioned whether such tests in general and the Canadian saccharin test in particular are an appropriate experimental way of determining what causes cancer in people.

"In the absence of even suggestive evidence of any hazard to human health ... it would seem reasonable to defer taking definitive, probably irreversible, steps to remove this useful sweetening agent from foods," he told the FDA panel.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the Nader organization, supported the ban. He said available data show saccharin does not help dieters control their weight. Small dosages, he said, may even increase appetites by lowering blood sugar levels.

More than 20 witnesses testified Wednesday, most of them opposing the FDA ban.

A group from Missouri, including former governor Christopher S. Bond, gave an emotional appeal to preserve diet soft drinks and sugarless gum for diabetic children who must restrict their sugar intake.

Dr. Sebastian G. Ciancio, head of the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Therapeutics, said the association opposes the ban, particularly on toothpastes, mouthwashes and drugs, including those with fluoride.

The ban, which begins in July, will eliminate the sugar substitute from all products but would permit its sale as an over-the-counter drug for diabetics and others on sugar-restricted diets.

NRA Opens Gun Show In Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP) — As many as 30,000 persons were expected to visit a giant gun show and exhibition during the National Rifle Association's annual meeting which began today at the Cincinnati Convention Center.

"Americans And Their Guns" is the theme for the display of firearms, accessories and outdoor equipment, with more than 150 exhibitors on hand.

NRA officials call this year's exhibition "the biggest and greatest gun show in the country."

"This year, visitors will be able to see, touch and handle the items on display as presented by dealers and manufacturers at the convention center," said Maj. Gen. Maxwell E. Rich, NRA executive vice president.

Gen. William Westmoreland, retired Army chief of staff, will be the main speaker at the NRA's concluding banquet Tuesday.

Seminars, business sessions and elections are on tap during the five-day event.

A presentation on the switch from lead shot to steel shot for waterfowl hunting is one of the scheduled items on the discussion agenda. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has already extended the controversial steel shot requirement to the Mississippi flyway, with further expansion scheduled for 1978.

Also scheduled during firearms legislative sessions are discussions on gun control measures being considered by Congress, the gun owner's role in grassroots legislative activity and the defeat last fall of handgun-banning legislation in Massachusetts.

Mainly because of restrictive new gun laws in Washington D.C., the 1.2 million-member organization is in the process of moving its headquarters to Colorado Springs, Colo. Construction work on the new headquarters is expected to be completed in about a year and a half, said Rich, a retired Army National Guard general.

In addition to the planning of the move, the NRA firing range in Washington was shut down by the organization at the suggestion of its attorneys. The annual meeting itself was moved to Cincinnati from Washington because of the firearms regulations.

Rich said it was felt that "many exhibitors might be reluctant" to take their firearms to Washington because of the restrictions. Therefore, he said, in keeping with the NRA's normal practice of "moving the annual meetings around the country to permit more members to attend," Cincinnati was chosen. Last year's annual meeting was held in Indianapolis.

Among the firearms displays will be a number of privately owned collections.

"The collector items are privately and individually owned and will be displayed along a variety of themes," said Robert Lowe, manager of the NRA's gun collectors division.

Some of the themes are "Guns of the Little Big Horn," "Evolution of the Arms," "Treasures of the Confederacy," and "Arms of Famous People."

Gasification Plant Work Scheduled

CHICAGO (AP) — Commonwealth Edison Co. has announced that the first $1.8 million is committed for an experimental plant in Pekin designed to convert coal to environmentally safe natural gas.

Preliminary engineering studies, cost projections and equipment procurement will begin soon, Thomas G. Ayers, president and chairman of the utility, said Thursday.

The $167 million project theoretically will convert 20 tons of coal an hour into natural gas for engines capable of putting out 25,000 kilowatts of electricity, he said.

"Our studies of coal gasification have indicated that the Lurgi process offers the greatest promise of providing in the shortest time a workable system for converting Illinois coal into a clean fuel for power generation," Ayers said.

Some 90 per cent of the sulfur content of the coal is expected to be removed by the process, but the gas will have only about one-seventh the heating capacity of ordinary natural gas.

Commonwealth Edison will be negotiating during the summer final contract terms for the plant with the Energy Research and Development Administration, which will pay for the bulk of the project.

The remainder will be funded by $14.2 million from the utility, $7.2 million from the state of Illinois and $30 million from the Electric Power Research Institute, a national electric utility association.

Plant construction is to begin next spring and be completed by the end of 1980, when a three-year test period would start to measure feasibility, capacity, cost and efficiency.

Grove City Man Again Wins Lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Alva Walker, a 43-year-old factory foreman from Grove City, beat the odds by winning the Ohio Lottery's "Pot O'Gold" two weeks in a row and will be a longshot entrant again next week.

He won't be the only one.

Also on the panel next week, the Lottery Commission reported, will be Carl Messina of Cleveland, who won $1,000 a month for life in the lottery March 11, 1976.

Messina will be sitting in this time for his wife, Lillian, a lottery spokesman said.

What are the odds on a man and wife hitting the lottery for a top prize in a 14-month span?

"Fantastic," the lottery spokesman said.

Walker, who won $55,000 Thursday night to add to the $140,000 he captured last week, said he expects to win next week.

"I'll come back and win again," he said confidently.

And he said he'll be wearing the same good luck charm he had with him the first two weeks—a mustard-seed tie pin given him by a fellow worker at the Fisher Body plant in Columbus.

This week, Walker also had a four-leaf clover, a clasp in the form of an owl and rings on most of his fingers.

The Pot O'Gold offers from $5,500 to $250,000 to panelists each week, so Walker is assured of topping $200,000 with his three-week total—even if he doesn't win the chance to pick for the top prize from the bowl of "gold nuggets."

Sibyl Lewis of Whitehall won $50,000 in the TV bonus drawing for losers in the Instant-II game.

Doug Corn of Elyria won $10,000 in the drawing for persons sending in four losing tickets from the instant game. The $5,000 third prize went to L.R. Kuhlman of Van Buren.

Likud Party Certain To Form Cabinet

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Late returns from the Israeli election give Menahem Begin's conservative Likud bloc and its potential coalition partners enough votes for a small but effective majority in the 120-member Knesset, Israel's parliament, election committee sources said today.

The unofficial count of civilian ballots from Tuesday's election gave Likud 43 seats in the 120-member parliament while the religious and right-wing partners that are expected to support it had 19 seats. This would give the coalition a total of 62 and a majority of four.

The sources said Likud was expected to pick up another seat from the still incomplete military returns for a total of 63, or a majority of six.

Meanwhile, the Labor party, which dominated Israeli politics from the founding of the state in 1948 until the election, rejected Likud leader Begin's invitation to form an all-party unity coalition. The late returns gave Labor 32 seats, one fewer than earlier returns indicated it would win and 19 fewer than its count in the 1973 election.

Begin, first in line to become prime minister, emphasized his opposition to Israel's relinquishing any of the West Bank of the Jordan river with a visit on Thursday to an unauthorized Jewish settlement at Kaddum, near Nablus, the volatile Arab capital of the West Bank.

Begin proclaimed the West Bank the "liberated land of Israel" and promised more Jewish settlements to cement Israel's hold on the territory, which it captured in the 1967 war.

The leader of the Labor party, Acting Prime Minister Shimon Peres, cited this stand in rejecting Begin's invitation to join in a coalition.

Likud Party Certain To Form Cabinet

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Late returns from the Israeli election give Menahem Begin's conservative Likud bloc and its potential coalition partners enough votes for a small but effective majority in the 120-member Knesset, Israel's parliament, election committee sources said today.

The unofficial count of civilian ballots from Tuesday's election gave Likud 43 seats in the 120-member parliament while the religious and right-wing partners that are expected to support it had 19 seats. This would give the coalition a total of 62 and a majority of four.

The sources said Likud was expected to pick up another seat from the still-incomplete military returns for a total of 63, or a majority of six.

Meanwhile, the Labor party, which dominated Israeli politics from the founding of the state in 1948 until the election, rejected Likud leader Begin's invitation to form an all-party unity coalition. The late returns gave Labor 32 seats, one fewer than earlier returns indicated it would win and 19 fewer than its count in the 1973 election.

Begin, first in line to become prime minister, emphasized his opposition to Israel's relinquishing any of the West Bank of the Jordan river with a visit on Thursday to an unauthorized Jewish settlement at Kaddum, near Nablus, the volatile Arab capital of the West Bank.

Begin proclaimed the West Bank the "liberated land of Israel" and promised more Jewish settlements to cement Israel's hold on the territory, which it captured in the 1967 war.

The leader of the Labor party, Acting Prime Minister Shimon Peres, cited this stand in rejecting Begin's invitation to join in a coalition.

WOW! What a price break on hand-loomed pillows from India.

Chances are you've admired these natural-look pillows in decorator shops. At fancy prices, right? Well, we made a very lucky buy direct from the importer. Extra heavy hand-loomed textured covers. Extra thick hand-tied fringe. Extra generous sizes, plumply filled with kapok/cotton. And now you get the decor pillow buy of the year. But hurry — we don't expect them to last long at these low prices.

Construction Strike
Impact Will Grow

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The impact of a three-day-old laborers' strike which has disrupted heavy public construction projects statewide should be gauged by next week, a state official says.

An Ohio Contractors Association official estimated that the strike, which began at midnight Tuesday, is costing $7 million to $8 million a day in lost work.

Paul Sweitzer, OCA manager of labor relations, said no new negotiations have been scheduled between the contractors and striking members of the Laborers District Council of Ohio.

The Department of Transportation said it received reports Thursday that picket lines had effectively halted work on several heavy construction projects across Ohio. But a spokesman said it would be Monday before the department could assess the time and money lost because of the strike.

John Scales, business manager for Laborers Union Local 423, said 15,000 laborers were involved in the strike and estimated that a total of 35,000 workers were affected by the walkout, including other union workers who honored picket lines.

Scales said the main issues of the dispute are wages and contract language dealing with the transferring of workers between regions in the state.

He said the union is seeking an 85-cent hourly increase. Members currently average about $8.60 an hour.

Scales said the union wants a clause in the contract to permit people to work on projects in areas where they live. Too frequently, he said, contractors from outside an area come in with their own people while laborers who live there remain out of work.

Sweitzer said the length of the strike would be better determined after the next negotiating session. That date will be set by a federal mediator.

"If both parties arrive (at the bargaining table), we will be willing to negotiate in good faith," Sweitzer said.

He said the contractors wanted another three-year contract and the laborers indicated they would consider it. Their three-year pact expired April 30.

Curb Approved On Ministers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ministers licensed to perform marriages in Ohio would have to renew their licenses every five years under a bill approved 82-2 Thursday by the House.

It also empowers the secretary of state, who issues the licenses, to cancel them in certain situations.

These include a minister leaving the profession, obtaining a license fraudulently, and failing to record a marriage in probate court, as required by law.

The bill was sent to the Senate.

Bill Crack Down On Tour Agencies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tour promoters and travel agencies which do not deliver promised services could be subject to fines and imprisonment under a bill now pending in the Senate.

The House approved the proposal 87-3 Thursday.

The chief sponsor, Rep. Robert A. Nader, D-55 Warren, said the legislation requires registration with the secretary of state, along with the posting of $100,000 bond, within 30 days after entering the tour business in Ohio.

Failure to register or to comply with other provisions of the measure could result in a jail term of up to 60 days and a $500 fine—or a fine of $3,000, in the case of an organization.

Nader's bill provides for Ohioans bilked by unscrupulous actions of promoters to file legal actions in their own name to recover from the licensee's state-held bond.

ROTARY SPEAKER — Charles Hickey (right) employe relations superintendent of the Circleville DuPont Plant, introduced E.H. Eichelberg to Rotarians Thursday. It seems we just got our snow plow bill paid and now we can't keep up with grass mowing. Bruce and Dave are on the mowers every day, but if you come down and find things a little shaggy, have patience, we are working on it.

Had a Grumman Gulf Stream in for local industry. Plane number 574 DU. Does that tell you anything? Also had an Aero Commander. That's the one you can back up. Ever see a plane move in reverse? They use about half the runway to land. That's less than I use for my 150.

Had some old friends drop in this week. Glen Jones and "Skip" Humphrey and his wife from Logan. I know golfers can lie pretty good, but they can't hold a candle to hangar flyers. Making three passes trying to land a plane I can understand, but shooting him down to get him on the ground, I can't quite swallow.

Martha Poling went on her solo cross country. She said she didn't get lost but I found a custom's sticker on the plane when she got back.

Two new students this week, Bruce Holter and Joe Straley. Lots of students doing cross-countries. Every one that gets lost has the same excuse - somebody moved the north pole.

The "Silent Eagle" is about ready to go!

Farmers Union Supports Moisture Grain Grading Bill

Ohio Farmers Union State President J. Mike Louiso, testified on H.B. 524, May 10, to the House Agriculture and Resource Committee in Columbus, Ohio, according to Charlie Nash, executive director of the Ohio Farmers Union.

This bill was introduced into the House by Representative Dale Locker from the 80th district who is also chairman of this committee.

Louiso referred to the policy adopted by the Ohio Farmers Union, delegates which states, "soybeans, wheat, feed grains and other agricultural products subject to a moisture test and test weights at point of sale by farmers should be uniformly sampled and tested under uniform conditions and with standard equipment under regulation of the State Department of Agriculture."

H.B. 524 addresses itself to the major portion of the Farmers Union policy in regard to state regulation of moisture testing and grading and told the committee that this type of legislation is long overdue.

Louiso stated that he felt that the main thrust of the bill is one of training and the acceptance of responsibility on the part of those who weigh, test and grade agricultural commodities, and this legislation would create a better feeling of confidence between the seller and the buyer.

Charles Wise, farmer and member from Sandusky County presented factual and documented information to the committee which pointed out the errors that presently exist in grading and testing and further showed the strong need for passage of H.B. 524.

Executive Director Charlie Nash stated that the next hearing on this bill is scheduled for Tues. afternoon, May 17, 1977. Additional hearings will be held in the future and anyone interested in participating at these public hearings may contact the Ohio Farmers Union state office for further details at 1604 E. Main St., Ottawa, Ohio, phone 419-523-5300.

It seems we just got our snow plow bill paid and now we can't keep up with grass mowing. Bruce and Dave are on the mowers every day, but if you come down and find things a little shaggy, have patience, we are working on it.

Had a Grumman Gulf Stream in for local industry. Plane number 574 DU. Does that tell you anything? Also had an Aero Commander. That's the one you can back up. Ever see a plane move in reverse? They use about half the runway to land. That's less than I use for my 150.

Had some old friends drop in this week. Glen Jones and "Skip" Humphrey and his wife from Logan. I know golfers can lie pretty good, but they can't hold a candle to hangar flyers. Making three passes trying to land a plane I can understand, but shooting him down to get him on the ground, I can't quite swallow.

Martha Poling went on her solo cross country. She said she didn't get lost but I found a custom's sticker on the plane when she got back.

Two new students this week, Bruce Holter and Joe Straley. Lots of students doing cross-countries. Every one that gets lost has the same excuse - somebody moved the north pole.

The "Silent Eagle" is about ready to go!

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

As we walked to work this morning, although the sun was coming up, things seemed a little on the dark side and even the birds weren't giving out with their cheerful notes. The town seemed to be sitting in the shadows as if it had lost something special — It did — Lester Smith is being buried today.

Not only has the community lost something special — Each and everyone of us who knew him lost something special — Because that is the kind of a guy that he was.

As we sit here doing one of the hardest things we have ever done in our lives, we hurt inside.

But all of us who are hurting are really lucky because this means that we knew him and were proud to call him "Bud-dy."

Lester was an asset to the community and to everyone who was privileged to know. He was a real friend and always there when you needed him.

He loved the kids and was always helping at the athletic functions in the county — We are really going to miss him at these affairs and think back to the hassles over who was going to buy the hot dogs or pizza — We are just grateful that we were fortunate enough to have this relationship with him.

We will always remember that friendly round face and impish grin as he would say "I'll buy if you'll go get the coffee, Uncle Bill."

We think back to the days he was playing softball and made his contribution. We also remember some of the fancy names we had for him in the stories in the paper.

He loved Little League baseball and put in a lot of free work and time getting the diamonds ready because that's the kind of a guy he was — He had to keep his shirt buttoned or his heart would fall out.

We are proud to say that we loved him — But, you could fill a book with the people in town who loved him.

He's gone now but he gave each one of us some wonderful memories so he really will never be forgotten.

You'll be reminded of him everyday as you see his milk trucks around town — No, they don't say Lester Smith on the side — They say Blue Ribbon — And that is the same thing.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Fidrych And Tigers Silence Reds, 4-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych is back in the Detroit Tigers nest, his wounded drumstick all better.

Detroit Manager Ralph Houk, who has been bringing the injured Rookie of the Year along slowly after knee surgery, was astounded on two counts at Fidrych's seven-inning, one-run performance, setting down the Cincinnati Reds 4-1 in an exhibition baseball game Thursday night.

"I was prepared for him to throw 90 to 100 pitches," said Houk, shaking his head. "He threw 78."

"I was really worried in the ninth inning when he made the fielding play to the left of the knee. I don't think he should have, but he did. And, I guess if he can do that, he's all right."

Fidrych, idiosyncrasies and all, won the hearts of the many young fans attending the game to benefit amateur baseball. They began cheering him in the late innings when it looked like the Tigers would have a no-hitter.

But his locker room performance was even better. Grabbing a beer, turning rock music full blast on his radio ("I have to have my music"), proudly announced he had found two pennies on the infield and pronounced himself well.

"I feel great and I don't want to hear

4 Seniors Named UC Cocaptains

Trifecta Pays $6,551 At Scioto Downs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Only four tickets were sold on the winning combination of 5-6-4 at Scioto Downs Thursday night as the trifecta paid $6,551.10 for a $3 bet.

Stormett won the featured race by coming on strong from fourth place at the top of the stretch and paid $10.40, $6.40 and $4.40. Hollys Candy returned $22.20 and $7.40 for second and Tuxedos Lisa, $3.80 for show.

The 5-2 daily double combination of Wee Helen and Heel Away was worth $30.20.

A crowd of 4,348 wagered $287,565.

nothing about my knee. It's all over," Fidrych said.

Conceding it has been a long wait, "I don't like being paid for sitting on the bench. That's no good," he said.

"I can play baseball again. I can participate. With the hitting we got this year I can make it up."

Houk predicted Fidrych will equal last year's 19-9 record.

Tom Nissalke Named NBA Top Coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Nissalke celebrated his wife's birthday Thursday, took his driving test to get a Texas driver's license and topped it off by being named National Basketball Association coach of the year.

Nissalke, 42, already had driven the surprising Houston Rockets to the NBA's Central Division championship and to the Eastern Conference finals with the fourth best record in the NBA.

After covering all that hazardous territory without an accident, the driver's test should have been a breeze.

"Coaches in general get too much credit when they win and too much flak when they lose," said Nissalke, who turned the Rockets from a 40-42 record to a 49-33 champion. "This is the biggest personal honor that has ever come to me and it's a reflection of the job the team did."

Nissalke beat out Los Angeles Coach Jerry West by a first-place vote margin of 26-21 and became the second pro coach to win coach of the year honors in both the NBA and American Basketball Association.

Former Utah Stars and Los Angeles Lakers Coach Bill Sharman also was a dual winner. Nissalke won ABA coach of the year honors after the 1971-72 season at Dallas.

The 7-7 double of Cullinan N and Greentree Edition paid $43.20 and the crowd of 1,040 bet $104,690.

"When you're sick or hurt, I can give you some old-fashioned attention."

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

As we walked to work this morning, although the sun was coming up, things seemed a little on the dark side and even the birds weren't giving out with their cheerful notes.

The town seemed to be sitting in the shadows as if it had lost something special — It did — Lester Smith is being buried today.

Not only has the community lost something special — Each and everyone of us who knew him lost something special — Because that is the kind of a guy that he was.

As we sit here doing one of the hardest things we have ever done in our lives, we hurt inside.

But all of us who are hurting are really lucky because this means that we knew him and were proud to call him "Bud-dy."

Lester was an asset to the community and to everyone who was privileged to know. He was a real friend and always there when you needed him.

He loved the kids and was always helping at the athletic functions in the county — We are really going to miss him at these affairs and think back to the hassles over who was going to buy the hot dogs or pizza — We are just grateful that we were fortunate enough to have this relationship with him.

We will always remember that friendly round face and impish grin as he would say "I'll buy if you'll go get the coffee, Uncle Bill."

We think back to the days he was playing softball and made his contribution. We also remember some of the fancy names we had for him in the stories in the paper.

He loved Little League baseball and put in a lot of free work and time getting the diamonds ready because that's the kind of a guy he was — He had to keep his shirt buttoned or his heart would fall out.

We are proud to say that we loved him — But, you could fill a book with the people in town who loved him.

He's gone now but he gave each one of us some wonderful memories so he really will never be forgotten.

You'll be reminded of him everyday as you see his milk trucks around town — No, they don't say Lester Smith on the side — They say Blue Ribbon — And that is the same thing.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Fidrych And Tigers Silence Reds, 4-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych is back in the Detroit Tigers nest, his wounded drumstick all better.

Detroit Manager Ralph Houk, who has been bringing the injured Rookie of the Year along slowly after knee surgery, was astounded on two counts at Fidrych's seven-inning, one-run performance, setting down the Cincinnati Reds 4-1 in an exhibition baseball game Thursday night.

"I was prepared for him to throw 90 to 100 pitches," said Houk, shaking his head. "He threw 78."

"I was really worried in the ninth inning when he made the fielding play to the left of the knee. I don't think he should have, but he did. And, I guess if he can do that, he's all right."

Fidrych, idiosyncrasies and all, won the hearts of the many young fans attending the game to benefit amateur baseball. They began cheering him in the late innings when it looked like the Tigers would have a no-hitter.

But his locker room performance was even better. Grabbing a beer, turning rock music full blast on his radio ("I have to have my music"), proudly announced he had found two pennies on the infield and pronounced himself well.

"I feel great and I don't want to hear

Trifecta Pays $6,551 At Scioto Downs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Only four tickets were sold on the winning combination of 5-6-4 at Scioto Downs Thursday night as the trifecta paid $6,551.10 for a $3 bet.

Stormett won the featured race by coming on strong from fourth place at the top of the stretch and paid $10.40, $6.40 and $4.40. Hollys Candy returned $22.20 and $7.40 for second and Tuxedos Lisa, $3.80 for show.

The 5-2 daily double combination of Wee Helen and Heel Away was worth $30.20.

A crowd of 4,348 wagered $287,565.

nothing about my knee. It's all over," Fidrych said.

Conceding it has been a long wait, "I don't like being paid for sitting on the bench. That's no good," he said.

"I can play baseball again. I can participate. With the hitting we got this year I can make it up."

Houk predicted Fidrych will equal last year's 19-9 record.

Tom Nissalke Named NBA Top Coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Nissalke celebrated his wife's birthday Thursday, took his driving test to get a Texas driver's license and topped it off by being named National Basketball Association coach of the year.

Nissalke, 42, already had driven the surprising Houston Rockets to the NBA's Central Division championship and to the Eastern Conference finals with the fourth best record in the NBA.

After covering all that hazardous territory without an accident, the driver's test should have been a breeze.

"Coaches in general get too much credit when they win and too much flak when they lose," said Nissalke, who turned the Rockets from a 40-42 record to a 49-33 champion. "This is the biggest personal honor that has ever come to me and it's a reflection of the job the team did."

Nissalke beat out Los Angeles Coach Jerry West by a first-place vote margin of 26-21 and became the second pro coach to win coach of the year honors in both the NBA and American Basketball Association.

Former Utah Stars and Los Angeles Lakers Coach Bill Sharman also was a dual winner. Nissalke won ABA coach of the year honors after the 1971-72 season at Dallas.

Bobby Wadkins' 68 Leads At Muirfield

MUIRFIELD CO-LEADER — Rookie Mark Lye pitches from the 14th fairway at the Muirfield Village golf course enroute to a blistering four-under-par 68 Thursday and a share of the first-round lead with Bobby Wadkins.

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — "I reckon you all know I was five-over-par after six holes. I thought about walking in," drawled Bobby Wadkins. He didn't. It was wise. The 25-year-old Virginian, younger brother of tour veteran Lanny Wadkins, exploded for an eagle three on the next hole, triggering a nine-under spree over the last 12 holes. His improbable back nine of 29, a course record by two shots, swept the younger Wadkins to a four-under-par 68 Thursday and a share of the first round lead with rookie Mark Lye in the $225,000 Memorial Golf Tournament. The pair of leaders, still searching for their first tour victories, had won a combined $21,000 this year. They were not even in the top 90 money winners. Still, they were at least two shots up on the world's greatest shotmakers and 19 ahead of Ben Crenshaw. Crenshaw, last week's winner at Fort Worth, ballooned to an 87 on the muggy, 88-degree day. "I haven't shot an 87 since I was 15," said Crenshaw as he stalked off. Gary Player and Bruce Lietzke, the year's No. 2 money earner, shared second with Chi Chi Rodriguez and Jerry McGee at 70. Masters champion Tom Watson, the leading money winner, and Tom Weiskopf were in an 11-player snarl at 71. Even Jack Nicklaus, the creator of this $7 million, 7,101-yard monster, settled for 72. Also at par were defending champion Roger Maltbie, Lee Trevino and Hale Irwin. Johnny Miller had 74 and Arnold Palmer 79. Wadkins one-putted 10 times on Muirfield Village's glass-fast greens and cracked, "I never used to be a very good putter on fast greens." Seven of those came in his seven-under-par back side, all for birdies.

116-MPH Pitcher Can't Keep Catchers

NEW YORK (AP) — There are those who forego the pleasures of working with high-voltage electrical wires, joining the police force in a high-crime area or wrestling an alligator. Some prefer catching 116 mile-an-hour fastballs thrown by Joan Joyce. "I lost two catchers last season," said the 36-year-old pitcher for the Connecticut Falcons professional women's softball team. "I lost them both because of the drop." The drop is one of six pitches in a repertoire that has been developed in 23 seasons of softball pitching. The others are the rise, the curve, the curve-rise, screwball and knuckleball, which would produce gray hairs for a catcher even if they weren't thrown with such nerve-and bat-shattering velocity. It isn't upper body strength which provides the speed, she says. "I've often thought of going on a weightlifting program to strengthen my arm, but I chicken out because of what could happen if I lost the flexibility in my right arm," she says. "I can't even do one pushup. They all make fun of me during calisthenics; I can do sit-ups all day, but no pushups for some reason."

But she can throw a drop pitch that rolls right off the edge of the table, so to speak. "If I were a catcher," she says, "I wouldn't call it." One victim, she recalled, had a finger fractured so badly in catching it that screws had to be surgically placed to help the bones heal. A drop bounced off another catcher's foot, causing another fracture. Just part of the job, said the sympathetic Miss Joyce, who began pitching with her father and brother near their home in Waterbury, Conn. "As soon as I was old enough to hold a ball, that's when I started," she recalled during a luncheon at which she was named second runnerup to gold medal winning skaters Dorothy Hamill and Sheila Young as the Athlete of the Year by Women Sports Magazine. To go with her variety of pitches, Miss Joyce sports a lifetime batting average of .325 and adds that "in fast-pitch softball, if you hit .270, you're a good hitter." They have to be good to hit Miss Joyce, who compiled a 39-2 record with 404 strikeouts and an earned run average of 0.13 in last year's championship season.

Gossage, Pirates Trip L.A., 6-5

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Few people saw it, but everybody praised it. Rich Gossage's fastball, that is. "It's hard to believe how hard Gossage throws that ball," said Pittsburgh teammate Rennie Stennett. "He's fast, fast, fast." Nobody kept the precise time on Gossage's favorite pitch Thursday night — but nobody hit it, either, and the result was a 6-5, 10-inning victory for the Pirates over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"He can throw that ball — man, can he throw that ball!" said Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda after watching the Pirates' relief pitcher strike out eight batters in three overpowering innings. That gave Gossage 24 strikeouts in the last 40 batters he has faced. In other National League games, the Atlanta Braves blanked the Chicago Cubs 6-0, the Houston Astros edged the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2, the San Diego Padres beat the Montreal Expos 5-2 and the New York Mets nipped the San Francisco Giants 4-3. While Gossage was throwing the ball by the batters, Stennett was hitting the ball through the fielders. He broke a tie with a 10th-inning, bases-loaded single for the winning run. Stennett's game-winning hit, a bouncer through the right side, came off reliever Charlie Hough. The Pirates had loaded the bases with two out off Hough on walks to pinch-hitter Ed Kirkpatrick, Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell. The victory was the 15th in 18 games for the National League East-leading Pirates, while the West Division-leading Dodgers sustained only their fifth loss in the last 16 games. Braves 6, Cubs 0

Knuckleballer Phil Niekro fired a three-hitter, recording his first victory as a starter this season in pitching Atlanta over Chicago. The victory snapped a six-game Chicago winning streak and was only the Cubs' second setback in 14 games. Atlanta, which had a 17-game losing streak earlier this year, extended its winning streak to four. Astros 3, Phillies 2

Willie Crawford's sacrifice fly capped a two-run uprising in the eighth, boosting Houston over Philadelphia. A walk to Cesar Cedeno, a single by Cliff Johnson and an error by losing pitcher Gene Garber on Joe Ferguson's sacrifice loaded the bases for Houston with none out. After Bob Watson struck out, Ken Boswell beat out a slow roller to third base, scoring Cedeno. Crawford then lifted his sacrifice fly to right, scoring Johnson.

Winner Joaquin Andujar, 3-3, scattered 10 hits in eight innings before leaving for a pinch hitter. Padres 5, Expos 2

Syracuse Defeats Rochester, 7-6

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Syracuse came back from a 5-0 deficit to nip Rochester 7-6 on Gene Locklear's two-run double in International League baseball action Thursday night. In other games, Charleston edged Richmond 3-2, Toledo dumped the Columbus 9-6, and Pawtucket upset the Boston Red Sox 4-3 in a 10-inning exhibition game at Pawtucket. Rochester scored three in the first inning and two more on Rick Bladt's homer with one on in the second. Syracuse came back with three in the bottom of the second starting with a single by Dave Bergman, who was batted in by a double from Mickey Klutts.

When the New York Knicks played San Antonio on March 1, 1977, Walt Frazier played in his 741st regular season game, a record for the Knicks.

In other National League games, the Atlanta Braves blanked the Chicago Cubs 6-0, the Houston Astros edged the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2, the San Diego Padres beat the Montreal Expos 5-2 and the New York Mets nipped the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

While Gossage was throwing the ball by the batters, Stennett was hitting the ball through the fielders. He broke a tie with a 10th-inning, bases-loaded single for the winning run. Stennett's game-winning hit, a bouncer through the right side, came off reliever Charlie Hough.

The Pirates had loaded the bases with two out off Hough on walks to pinch-hitter Ed Kirkpatrick, Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell.

The victory was the 15th in 18 games for the National League East-leading Pirates, while the West Division-leading Dodgers sustained only their fifth loss in the last 16 games.

Braves 6, Cubs 0

Knuckleballer Phil Niekro fired a three-hitter, recording his first victory as a starter this season in pitching Atlanta over Chicago. The victory snapped a six-game Chicago winning streak and was only the Cubs' second setback in 14 games. Atlanta, which had a 17-game losing streak earlier this year, extended its winning streak to four.

Astros 3, Phillies 2

Willie Crawford's sacrifice fly capped a two-run uprising in the eighth, boosting Houston over Philadelphia. A walk to Cesar Cedeño, a single by Cliff Johnson and an error by losing pitcher Gene Garber on Joe Ferguson's sacrifice loaded the bases for Houston with none out.

After Bob Watson struck out, Ken Boswell beat out a slow roller to third base, scoring Cedeño. Crawford then lifted his sacrifice fly to right, scoring Johnson.

Winner Joaquin Andujar, 3-3, scattered 10 hits in eight innings before leaving for a pinch hitter. Padres 5, Expos 2

Jerry Turner slammed a two-run home run and winner Randy Jones got four innings of sparkling relief as San Diego defeated the Montreal Expos.

Mets 4, Giants 3

Home runs by John Milner and Lenny Randle led New York and rookie pitcher Jackson Todd over San Francisco.

Syracuse Defeats Rochester, 7-6

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Syracuse came back from a 5-0 deficit to nip Rochester 7-6 on Gene Locklear's two-run double in International League baseball action Thursday night.

In other games, Charleston edged Richmond 3-2, Toledo dumped Columbus 9-6, and Pawtucket upset the Boston Red Sox 4-3 in a 10-inning exhibition game at Pawtucket.

Rochester scored three in the first inning and two more on Rick Bladt's homer with one on in the second. Syracuse came back with three in the bottom of the second starting with a single by Dave Bergman, who was batted in by a double from Mickey Klutts.

When the New York Knicks played San Antonio on March 1, 1977, Walt Frazier played in his 741st regular season game, a record for the Knicks.

Stone, Chisox Whip Royals, 8-3

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Steve Stone was a 1976 free agent who didn't have to change his address when he changed teams. He went from the Chicago Cubs to the Chicago White Sox.

The difference, however, has been like night and day — and it has nothing to do with the Cubs' Wrigley Field having no lights.

"The key to my success has been our offense," said Stone, who was supported by three White Sox homers in Chicago's 8-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals Thursday night. "It's been devastating."

Stone, 3-6 with a 4.08 earned run average in 17 games with the Cubs last season, is on a hot streak of his own right now. He has hurled five complete games, compiling a 4-3 record and a 2.34 ERA.

Jorge Orta, Oscar Gamble and Chet Lemon each slugged solo homers for the White Sox, who moved within one game of first-place Minnesota in the American League West.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Milwaukee Brewers downed the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3, the New York Yankees crushed the Baltimore Orioles 9-1, the Seattle Mariners blanked the Oakland A's 3-0, and the California Angels beat the Minnesota Twins 5-3.

The Royals, last year's AL West champions, slipped a game below .500 with the loss. Jim Colborn, making his first appearance since tossing a no-hitter against Texas last Saturday, hurled 2 2-3 innings and was charged with his fourth loss in nine decisions.

Mariners 3, A's 0
Dave Pagan made Seattle history, giving the expansion club its first shutout victory with a six-hitter against Oakland.

Pagan struck out eight and walked one in gaining his first major league shutout and only his third complete game in 15 career starts.

The Mariners scored twice in the second inning on a double by Dan Meyer, a run-scoring single by Bill Stein and a double by Bob Stinson.

Yankees 9, Orioles 1
Thurman Munson led the way for the Yankees, knocking in four runs with a single, triple and homer. Munson leads the Yankees with eight homers, seven of them in his last 15 games.

Willie Randolph scored four runs and contributed four of New York's 14 hits in support of Ed Figueroa, 5-2, who coasted to his fifth straight complete game triumph with a six-hitter while lowering his league-leading ERA to 1.22.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 3
Milwaukee scored four runs in the third inning on six walks and a two-run single by Cecil Cooper.

Toronto starter Bill Singer, 26, was the victim of the big inning in which two runs scored on bases-loaded walks and another as Mike Hegan reached base on an error and came around on a balk, a passed ball and a wild pitch.

Angels 5, Twins 3
Nolan Ryan tied a strikeout record while fanning 12 Minnesota batters, snapping the Twins' five-game winning streak.

Ryan now has fanned 10 or more batters in 74 games, matching the American League mark set by Sam McDowell, who also struck out 10 or more batters 14 times in the National League.

Run Dusty Run Set For Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Smiley Adams can't pull another major Preakness surprise Saturday, but there are indications his entry is again being overlooked.

Two years ago, Adams saddled Master Derby to victory in the second race of the Triple Crown series, with the son of Dust Commander going off at 23-1 despite having finished out of the money only twice in 20 starts.

Now Adams is back at Pimlico Race Course with Run Dusty Run, another Dust Commander colt who has finished worse than second just once in 15 career starts but is listed at only 8-1 in the early odds.

Run Dusty Run has finished second in his last four outings including the Kentucky Derby May 7, leading many observers to conclude the colt merely is a perennial runner-up. But Adams disagrees.

"I think I've got a good shot," the veteran trainer said. "Only this time, I don't want to be 10 or 12 lengths back."

That was in reference to the Kentucky Derby when Run Dusty Run came from far off the pace and lost to unbeaten Seattle Slew by 1 3/4 lengths in the 1 1/4-mile classic.

For the Preakness, one-sixteenth of a mile shorter, Seattle Slew is expected to be in the lead along with two colts who missed the Derby because of illness, Cormorant and J.O. Tobin.

Seattle Slew will break from the No. 8 spot, just inside Run Dusty Run in the nine-horse field, and is a 3-5 choice in the early line to continue his quest of becoming the 10th Triple Crown

Judge Backs Ted Turner Suspension

ATLANTA (AP) — Ted Turner's one-year suspension from baseball has been upheld by a federal judge who said a casual observer might call the case "a comedy of errors" or "an Indian massacre in reverse."

U.S. District Court Judge Newell Edenfield ruled Thursday that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn had the power to suspend the outspoken owner of the Atlanta Braves, but voided Kuhn's elimination of the team's first-round choice in next month's amateur draft.

"In their encounter with the commissioner, the Braves took nary a scalp, but lived to see their own dangling from the lodgepole of the commissioner, apparently only as a grisly warning to others," Edenfield wrote.

Turner said he had no intention of appealing the portion which upheld his suspension, but that Kuhn might want to appeal the decision denying his authority to remove Atlanta's first-round draft pick.

"He wanted a total victory," Turner said.

Meanwhile, in New York, Kuhn declined to comment on the order, saying he would have to see it first.

Kuhn suspended Turner last Jan. 18, relying on a clause in the Major League Agreement authorizing him to act against any matter he considered "not in the best interests" of baseball.

The commissioner contended Turner violated a directive prohibiting owners from talking money to opposing teams' players before the free-agent draft last Nov. 4.

Joe Morgan Equals Mark

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds second baseman Joe Morgan isn't exactly jumping for joy after equalling one of the oldest marks in the club's record book.

Morgan on Wednesday tied Bob Bescher's career stolen base mark when he stole his 319th base as a Red.

Bescher played with the Reds from 1908 to 1913.

"I've only been here six years and I've tied the record. I have more than 500 steals in the big leagues (514). Both Dave Concepcion and Ken Griffey will have more steals than this record," said Morgan, who played with Houston before joining the Reds.

Morgan so far this year has nine steals in 13 attempts, but the two time most valuable player is having trouble at the plate, hitting only .250.

"It was a big thrill just to get to second base for a change," said Morgan after being on the back end of a double steal.

The next time Morgan got to first base after equalling the record, he got picked off by Pittsburgh pitcher Grant Jackson.

"I'm using up all my concentration in the batter's box," Morgan said. "I can't concentrate when I get to first base. Grant Jackson doesn't have that good a move. But I'm thinking about so many things when I'm hitting that I have nothing left when I get to base."

Water Pipe Suit Quietly Settled

NEW YORK (AP) — Nelson Rockefeller did not know Charles Bluhdorn, his downstairs neighbor at a Fifth Avenue address, was suing him because of a broken water pipe last winter.

It seems the claim had been filed by Bluhdorn's insurance company, said Donald Crenshaw, who added that the neighbors saw no reason to go to court after learning of the action, they struck a gentleman's agreement out of court.

Catch up with level billing

No one needs to remind you how cold it was this past winter. In fact, it was the coldest winter Ohio has experienced in the last 100 years.

Colder temperatures mean higher gas and electric bills. DP&L recognizes this, and we are offering a six-month Level Billing plan to help ease the impact for those customers who are behind in their utility bills.

Here's how it works:

Your unpaid balance will be . . . spread over a period of six months. The amount currently owing and your anticipated billing through October will be divided by six beginning with your May bill.

To get started . . . just pay the amount listed on your statement for "Level Bill." This will automatically put you on the road to being caught up on your gas and electric bill by October.

Remember . . . participation in Level Billing protects your credit rating and prevents further collection action. Also, this plan is offered at no cost to you. You still pay only for the service you use.

Over 78 percent of our customers have already enjoyed the convenience of Level Billing.

Check your May bill for further details!

Wilma Cooper Still Performing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Grand Ole Opry star Wilma Lee Cooper vows to continue performing despite the death of her husband, Stoney, who teamed with her for 30 years.

"I'm going right on," she said. "I don't plan on retiring. I have good health and as long as I keep my health, there's nothing to keep me from going on."

Her husband, a bluegrass fiddler, died March 22 of a heart condition, a pinched nerve, phlebitis and emphysema after being hospitalized 46 days.

The two were pioneers in traditional country music and appeared on the Grand Ole Opry for 20 years.

"Entertaining is my life," Mrs. Cooper, 56, said in a luncheon interview. "If I had my life to live over, I'd do the same thing."

"I'm not going to change my style. I'm one of the few traditionalist women left. The music I do needs to be carried on."

She said it was difficult at first to continue entertaining after her husband died.

"We depended on each other. I got the feeling of being lost. He'd do most of the talking; he was sort of the emcee."

Her band is helping select a fiddle player to replace Stoney.

"I'd like to have a younger man for that," she said. "I want to keep my band young."

Deeply religious, she regards her husband's death as God's will.

"Death is not the terrible thing we've been brought up to believe," she said. "It's another step in living."

"I told God to put him in His hands. I told Him that I was giving Stoney to Him. I knew that in God's hands he was in perfect hands. When I told God that, I felt a peaceful feeling."

Bluegrass music has surged in popularity in recent years, which Mrs. Cooper attributes to a periodic change in tastes.

"Everything goes in cycles. There is a season for everything. When rock took over, country was left behind. The college kids brought bluegrass in when they got interested in the five-string banjo. Earl Scruggs had a following and had a lot to do with the banjo part of it."

"Bluegrass is now what we called country or hillbilly music as a kid."

The Coopers, both natives of West

Virginia, were one of the few husband-and-wife teams in country music.

"We made our name in radio before the days of television," she recalled. "We'd go to a place, stay six weeks, get our name established and then move on. You can't do that today."

In 1950, they were named "most authentic mountain singing group" by the Harvard University Library of Music.

Cooper was a member of the board of directors of the Association of Country Entertainers — a group that promotes traditional country music. She will finish his term.

Their daughter, Carol Lee, also is a singer on the Grand Ole Opry.

Girl Wins Grad Rights

AURORA, Ohio (AP) — Armed with a court order, Patricia Anewalt will be able to take part in graduation ceremonies June 5 at Aurora High School.

Miss Anewalt, 18, went to court after school officials told her she would get a diploma but could not take part in the graduation ceremonies.

The reason, the school said, was that she had dropped a vocational course and thereby "abdicated her rights as a student."

But Portage County Common Pleas Court Judge Joseph Kainrad ruled Wednesday that her privileges "are the same as any others in her graduating class."

High school graduation exercises, he said, "are an American tradition. They are a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and one of the most important events in the lives of most youngsters."

"I feel great and I'm so happy," said Miss Anewalt, who completed the necessary credits in February and left school to get an early start at Lakeland Community College.

The problem developed because she dropped a vocational course along the way, and the school said that classified her as a dropout under state regulations.

She said she went through four years and "I did not want a piece of paper just handed to me."

Morgan on Wednesday tied Bob Bescher's career stolen base mark when he stole his 319th base as a Red.
Bescher played with the Reds from 1908 to 1913.

"I've only been here six years and I've tied the record. I have more than 500 steals in the big leagues (514). Both Dave Concepcion and Ken Griffey will have more steals than this record," said Morgan, who played with Houston before joining the Reds.

Morgan so far this year has nine steals in 13 attempts, but the two time most valuable player is having trouble at the plate, hitting only .250.

"It was a big thrill just to get to second base for a change," said Morgan after being on the back end of a double steal.

The next time Morgan got to first base after equalling the record, he got picked off by Pittsburgh pitcher Grant Jackson.

"I'm using up all my concentration in the batter's box," Morgan said. "I can't concentrate when I get to first base. Grant Jackson doesn't have that good a move. But I'm thinking about so many things when I'm hitting that I have nothing left when I get to base."

Wilma Cooper Still Performing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Grand Ole Opry star Wilma Lee Cooper vows to continue performing despite the death of her husband, Stoney, who teamed with her for 30 years.
"I'm going right on," she said. "I don't plan on retiring. I have good health and as long as I keep my health, there's nothing to keep me from going on."

Her husband, a bluegrass fiddler, died March 22 of a heart condition, a pinched nerve, phlebitis and emphysema after being hospitalized 46 days.

The two were pioneers in traditional country music and appeared on the Grand Ole Opry for 20 years.

"Entertaining is my life," Mrs. Cooper, 56, said in a luncheon interview. "If I had my life to live over, I'd do the same thing."

"I'm not going to change my style. I'm one of the few traditionalist women left. The music I do needs to be carried on."

She said it was difficult at first to continue entertaining after her husband died.

Girl Wins Grad Rights

AURORA, Ohio (AP) — Armed with a court order, Patricia Anewalt will be able to take part in graduation ceremonies June 5 at Aurora High School.

Miss Anewalt, 18, went to court after school officials told her she would get a diploma but could not take part in the graduation ceremonies.

The reason, the school said, was that she had dropped a vocational course and thereby "abdicated her rights as a student."

But Portage County Common Pleas Court Judge Joseph Kainrad ruled Wednesday that her privileges "are the same as any others in her graduating class."

High school graduation exercises, he said, "are an American tradition. They are a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and one of the most important events in the lives of most youngsters."

"I feel great and I'm so happy," said Miss Anewalt, who completed the necessary credits in February and left school to get an early start at Lakeland Community College.

The problem developed because she dropped a vocational course along the way, and the school said that classified her as a dropout under state regulations.

She said she went through four years and "I did not want a piece of paper just handed to me."

"We depended on each other. I got the feeling of being lost. He'd do most of the talking; he was sort of the emcee."

Her band is helping select a fiddle player to replace Stoney.

"I'd like to have a younger man for that," she said. "I want to keep my band young."

Deeply religious, she regards her husband's death as God's will.

"Death is not the terrible thing we've been brought up to believe," she said. "It's another step in living."

"I told God to put him in His hands. I told Him that I was giving Stoney to Him. I knew that in God's hands he was in perfect hands. When I told God that, I felt a peaceful feeling."

Bluegrass music has surged in popularity in recent years, which Mrs. Cooper attributes to a periodic change in tastes.

"Everything goes in cycles. There is a season for everything. When rock took over, country was left behind. The college kids brought bluegrass in when they got interested in the five-string banjo. Earl Scruggs had a following and had a lot to do with the banjo part of it."

"Bluegrass is now what we called country or hillbilly music as a kid." The Coopers, both natives of West Virginia, were one of the few husband-and-wife teams in country music.

"We made our name in radio before the days of television," she recalled. "We'd go to a place, stay six weeks, get our name established and then move on. You can't do that today."

In 1950, they were named "most authentic mountain singing group" by the Harvard University Library of Music.

Cooper was a member of the board of directors of the Association of Country Entertainers — a group that promotes traditional country music. She will finish her term.

Their daughter, Carol Lee, also is a singer on the Grand Ole Opry.

Catch up with level billing

No one needs to remind you how cold it was this past winter. In fact, it was the coldest winter Ohio has experienced in the last 100 years.
Colder temperatures mean higher gas and electric bills. DP&L recognizes this, and we are offering a six-month Level Billing plan to help ease the impact for those customers who are behind in their utility bills.
Here's how it works:
Your unpaid balance will be... spread over a period of six months. The amount currently owing and your anticipated billing through October will be divided by six beginning with your May bill.

To get started... just pay the amount listed on your statement for "Level Bill." This will automatically put you on the road to being caught up on your gas and electric bill by October.
Remember... participation in Level Billing protects your credit rating and prevents further collection action. Also, this plan is offered at no cost to you. You still pay only for the service you use.
Over 78 percent of our customers have already enjoyed the convenience of Level Billing.

Prom Chairman Thanks Juniors

The 1977 prom was a great success! The theme for this year was "The Wizard of Oz." Heather Timberlake, prom chairman, would like to recognize and express sincere thanks to the following chairmen for their time and effort organizing and decorating their specific area of the gymnasium:

Terri Strawser - entrance; Julie Kazmierczak and Annie Obermeyer - refreshments; Jeanna Schlichter and Keith Connell - walls.

Cindy Peters - center and main characters; Joyce VanVliet - bandstand; Dawn Butler - for helping with "Munchki land"; Susan Hill - and Jeff Haist - ceiling; Alyse Bergen - tickets; Andrea Contino and Teresa Tomlinson - tables; and Tonda Harper for helping as prom assistant.

The prom committee would all also like to thank Steve Lust, class advisor, for all his time and patience with us working on prom and a "special thanks" to all those who helped out on the various committees. Although a lot of hard work and long hours were put into this, it was a lot of fun, and I would like to wish the sophomores the best of luck with prom next year.

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the Stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR SATURDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Matters on the immediate agenda should be taken care of as expected. Give a little where it would ease tensions, but not at the expense of principles.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Good stellar influences favor a new approach to difficult problems, consolidation of gains made in the past. Start looking now for improved returns.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Dedication to obligations will pay - especially when you have resisted the temptation to veer off, let things go. Inventiveness, originality stimulated.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): A new approach may be necessary in some areas, in order to cope with unusual circumstances but day, on the whole, should prove stimulating, satisfying.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Solar influences beneficent. Rouse yourself to that added effort which brings sweet compensation for extra-curricular work. Stay alert, aware.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Admonitions for this day: Don't be so overly cautious that you lose out on advantages and don't rely on help from others. This will be a period when your own grit must see you through.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You have an exceptionally good planetary set-up now but must toe the line, nevertheless, to avoid friction with those who are not in so comfortable a spot.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): A special way of saying the right thing at the right time will be rewarding. Be cognizant of "tricky" situations and handle as required.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your perceptions may need some keening now. Be sure to take all factors into account when sizing up unexpected circumstances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Single-handedly you can institute improvements in many areas, tie up loose ends and plan new undertakings, but minor matters may tend to distract. Don't let them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Especially favored now: personal relationships, avocational interests, travel plans and outdoor pursuits. A good day!

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Mixed influences. You can hold your own through thoughtful management - plus a dash of imagination. Take possible changes of plan in stride.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great dexterity, both mental and physical, a rare understanding of your fellowman and a delightful sense of humor. If you do not choose business as a career (which may be in the areas of banking, real estate or promotion), you will probably incline toward such professions as writing, medicine, the law or teaching. The stage would also be an excellent outlet for your talents. You like frequent changes of scenery and, to the Taurus-Gemini cuspal (one born at the change of Signs), even pleasure travel can lead to professional achievement. Birthdate of: Alexander Pope, Eng. carry it out, to carry it out without violating a law. Otherwise, they're in an impossible decision."

White House spokesman Gramum said Carter feels "there are adequate judicial means to prevent danger to the country."

Nixon's belief that the presidency bestows a legal umbrella over his actions runs counter to court decisions and to the findings of the House committee that recommended his impeachment.

The Supreme Court, in ordering Nixon to release his White House tapes — the action that speeded his resignation in 1974 — said in no sense is a president "above the law." Aides on trial for Watergate abuses were not permitted to use presidential sanction as a defense.

The House Judiciary Committee determined Nixon had committed "high crimes and misdemeanors," including abuse of his presidential powers and not seeing that the laws were faithfully executed.

And Ford said on Sept. 8, 1974, that Nixon had "become liable to possible indictment and trial." The pardon "for all offenses against the United States," he said, was to spare Nixon further punishment and degradation.

"What's the dividing line between the burglar not being liable to criminal prosecution, and the murderer?" Frost asked Nixon.

"There are degrees, there are nuances which are difficult to explain," Nixon replied.

The discussion turned to the White House plumbers, so-named because their duty was to plug leaks. Agents of the unit broke into a psychiatrist's office looking for dirt on Ellsberg.

Nixon couldn't recall John Ehrlichman telling him E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy had to go to California to find information.

"He may well have," said Nixon. "And if he had, I would have said 'go right ahead.' But, I recall no conversation whatever with Ehrlichman about their going to California for the purpose of, what was called a quote, 'covert operation' or for the purpose of determining whether Ellsberg's psychiatrist might furnish information."

Frost brought up Nixon statements, taken from his White House tapes, in which the conversation was about political enemies — "those who've tried to do us in."

"Isn't there in that whole conversation . . ." Frost began.

Helpfully, Nixon finished the question: "a paranoid attitude?"

Then he launched into the slights he suffered by not being invited to the White House in the Kennedy-Johnson years. "I remember Rose Mary Woods, my secretary who made up the invitation lists, went out of her mind when I put Hubert Humphrey on the list for White House dinners," Nixon said.

"What I'm trying to tell you that this whole business of 'am I paranoid about hating people and trying to do them in?' And the answer is: at times yes."

He recalled that after the New York Times in May 1969 revealed that U.S. planes were bombing Cambodia, he suggested to Henry A. Kissinger that someone on Kissinger's staff might have leaked the information.

"And Henry said 'I will destroy them,'" said Nixon. "Henry's not a mean man.... We felt this way because people on the other side were hypocritical, they were sanctimonious and they were not serving the best interests of the country...."

"Call it paranoia, but paranoia for peace isn't that bad."
